MASS. LEGISLATORS DEMAND BURLESON ACT TO END STRIKE

STRIKERS QUIT MILL HEARING

Refuse Further to Attend Session of State Board in Hall at Lawrence

Lawrence, April 15.—The investigation being conducted by the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation into the local textile strike took a sudden and surprising turn this noon.

Following the reading of a statement by Attorney George W. Roewer, Jr., of Boston, representing the strikers, he and the strikers withdrew from the inquiry, considering it a "waste of time or a further delay of the settlement of the issue to further attend a hearing that is already discredited by differences within the board."

There was a demonstration as the attorney, members of the strike committee and strikers left the hall.

Lawrence has been chosen by the textile manufacturers of the East as the battleground in which the demand of labor for an eight-hour day and no reduction in pay must be defeated.

This is the reason the struggle here is being fought so bitterly, and why the Lawrence strike is not a nation-wide strike, according to testimony of mill agents appearing today at the State Board hearing.

"I know of mill owners who tell their operatives not to strike; that what the Lawrence workers get they will get, and without the damage to both capital and labor," testified Agent James Milliken of the Everett Mills.

He intimated that labor also preferred Lawrence as a battleground. Mr. Milliken intimated that one of the reasons that Lawrence was such fruitful ground for labor trouble was the lack of unions among the employes.

OPERATORS COLLAPSE IN CRUSH

Six Faint on Leaving Hall Packed Far Beyond Its Capacity

The striking telephone operators of the Greater Boston district abandoned their plans for a mass meeting today following a near panic in Fay Hall, Washington and Dover streets, in which six girls fainted, scores of others were on the verge of doing so and half a dozen were thrown down descending the stairway leading into the hall.

An attempt to hold an overflow meeting in Wells Memorial was also abandoned.

Thousands of girls were packed in Fay Hall long before the hour of meeting, scheduled for 10 o'clock, and thousands of others were outside the hall clamoring to get in.

Union officials made every effort to clear the aisles, but as fast as they cleared a space it would be filled up again.

There was much loud screaming and climbing on chairs when a girl discovered a mouse, or thought she did. This excitement died away quickly, to be revived at the end of the hall when a girl was taken sick. She refused to leave the hall.

The real panic followed the arrival of President Julia S. O'Connor of the Telephone Operators' Union. Taking in the situation at a glance, she announced that the overflow would be taken care of in Wells Memorial Hall.

Then the panic occurred.

Girls rushed for the stairways and fire escapes. Patrolman O'Donnell of Sta-

8,000 GIRLS QUIT AT 'ZERO HOUR'

As the first day of the great Boston and New England telephone strike wore along the following developments ensued:

1. United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton said he would confer with telephone officials on the strike and its effect on Federal business.

2. Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commanding Northeastern Department, U. S. A., said the army would not interfere or run switchboards.

3. Bay State Democratic legislative delegation wired Postmaster-General Burleson to fulfill party convention pledges of peaceful settlement of labor disputes. Suggested arbitrators.

4. Washington dispatches reiterate Burleson's "stand-pat" attitude that the operators should handle their grievances through regular channels.

5. Telephone girls holding firm to their strike, with 8,000 out and New England service affected from the Canadian border down to the Connecticut line.

6. Miss Julia O'Connor, president of Telephone Operators' Union, claims more than 600,000 telephones are tied up. Company officials deny this, but admit it is the worst strike in the business.

7. Company talks of plans to relieve sit-

DENIES U. S. SOLDIERS ARE KILLED IN CHINA

Washington, April 15.—No American soldiers were killed in the Tien Tsin disturbances on March 13, and therefore no claims for damages could have been submitted by this government, the State Department announced today in denying a report published in a Chinese newspaper at San Francisco that the Japanese government had settled with the United States for $270,000 for the deaths of two American soldiers.

FITZGERALD'S WITNESSES MISSING

The much-looked-for sensational testimony in the Fitzgerald-Tague fight for possession of the seat in the Tenth Congressional District did not materialize today when, after a fortnight's suspension, the hearing was resumed in the Federal Building.

Practically all of the witnesses subponed by the Fitzgerald side failed to respond to their summonses, each one giving a reason by letter for his non-appearance.

Herbert W. Boynton, assistant secretary of State, testified to having received six ballots cast by soldiers or sailors overseas, but which arrived too late to be counted in with the Tague and Fitzgerald polls. These six ballots, he testified, gave Fitzgerald five votes and Tague the remaining one.

Attorney Timothy F. Callahan, of counsel for Fitzgerald, read into the records the subpoenas sent to Merton L. Emerson, president of the Pneumatic Postal Tube Company and to Daniel F. Buckley, attorney for the same.

It is the object of the Fitzgerald side to show that Tague accepted from officers of the Pneumatic Postal Tube Company campaign fund donations.

It is alleged that Tague in opposing the taking over by the government of the Pneumatic Postal Tube

Baron Ishii, Japan's Envoy to U. S., Called Home

Washington, April 15.—Baron Ishii, Japanese ambassador to the United States, has been directed to sail for home to attend an important conference, it was announced at the Japanese embassy today.

Aside from the bare announcement, officials of the embassy withheld other details, adding only that he would sail probably early next month.

"There is positively no international significance in the situation," Acting Secretary of State Polk asserted this afternoon.

MANHOLE BLOWS UP; HUNDREDS IN PERIL

While thousands of persons were passing on both sides of Washington street, as well as on Milk street today, a manhole cover was hurled into the air with a roar. Behind it came a heavy tongue of flame with a dense cloud of smoke following.

Instantly there was a wild scramble for places of safety by the big throng. Drivers of automobiles and teams hastened to get out of the way. The cover fell to the street without having injured anyone.

The force of the explosion shattered windows in the Transcript Building as well as in some of those on the other side of Washington street and in Mil kstreet.

An alarm was sounded and in a remarkably short time Washington street's most spectacular fire in years became a matter for current historians to relate.

TELEPHONE WIRES ARE DEAD AS GIRLS CARRY OUT STRIKE THREAT

SWITCHBOARDS DESERTED AS UNION OPERATORS QUIT

uation, but is silent as to details. Hints of strike-breakers are heard.

8. Business and social activity caught in confused snarl. Business loss mounting hourly by thousands of dollars.

General Edwards said, in regard to the army's position:

"The army has nothing to do with the telephone strike. There will be no interference, so far as the army is concerned. It is none of my business. Any report that the army is running the telephone is all bosh. Not a word of truth in it."

DEMAND SETTLEMENT.

The telegram sent to Postmaster-General Burleson by a Bay State group of State Senators and Representatives called for immediate settlement of the strike. Among the signers was Representative William H. McDonnell, Democratic floor leader of the House.

Arbitrators suggested included United States Senator David I. Walsh, Henry B. Endicott, District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman, Mayor Andrew J. Peters, Sherman L. Whipple and Congressman Michael F. Phelan, James A. Gallivan and Richard Olney.

HINT AT FEDERAL INTERVENTION

A statement made in behalf of General Manager William R. Driver, Jr., of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company said that plans were being made to relieve the strike situation. Company officials declined, however, to reveal these plans.

There was a hint at Federal intervention. A report was circulated that naval radio operators would be detailed to work "struck" switchboards. Telephone officials denied this. But they took the ground at the same time that such action would not be extreme, because the telephone company, a Federal activity, now has about the same official status as the postal service.

It is estimated that there are 20,000 women in Massachusetts alone who have served as telephone operators. Many of these are now out of the service through marriage, transfer to other lines of work. Some of them are now engaged in war work.

It is intimated that these women may be induced, if the tieup continued, to operate the switchboards.

SECURITY PLAN CRITICISED.

The suggestion was heard that telephone girls might be recruited from the private switchboards of business houses. But, outside of the question whether these girls would consent to serve as strike-breakers, the feasibility of the plan was criticised from the angle that it would simply be "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

The number of telephones in the "struck" territory is estimated as follows:

Boston Metropolitan Division	250,000.
All Massachusetts	500,000.
Maine	60,000.
New Hampshire	40,000.
Vermont	20,000.

Mayor O'Connor insisted today that practically all these had been put out of commission by the tie-up.

Telephone company officials took exception to this claim. They said that, in the first place, there were more than 200 small co-local telephone companies operating in the strike territory and that the operators of these independent lines, not being unionized, were not called out and that the local service was not affected except on long-distance calls.

Officials expressed opinion, however, that doubtless more than 100 toll circuits were paralyzed.

One of the statisticians at the company headquarters, No. 50 Oliver street, said:

"This is the first time in all history that a city the size of Boston has been tied up by a telephone strike. Five years ago we had a fire in the central exchange at Worcester. For nine days there was very little service. There was a great amount of local inconvenience. Now, with the New England States pretty well tied up, it is impossible to estimate the cost to the public in time and money, whether in business or in the homes. At the time of the Worcester strike business men hurried to Worcester from points as far away as Buffalo to transact business, then hustled back to their own places."

Significant of the far reach of the strike was a dispatch today from Houlton, Me., near the Canadian border, saying that twenty-two girls walked out there today without having any demands upon their local officials or without an official announcement from their union. The April term of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court opened at Houlton today. The telephone tieup was severely felt throughout Aroostook County.

WIRES THICKLY CONGESTED.

Foodstuffs felt the strike. The Grain Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which is the New England market for wholesale trade in hay, grain, flour and feed, suffered greatly. Both telegraph companies have offices on the board room floor, where the trading is done. Dealers use the telegraph for business with Chicago and the Western milling centres. But for New England business the telephone has been favored. Efforts to load this New England communication on the telegraph wires brought quick confusion. Dealers and brokers were terribly hampered by the telephone snarl.

The Grain Board, as well as many other business interests, hoped that the Chamber of Commerce would be able to help. But there was no promise today of results from that direction. Secretary James A. McKibben of the chamber said:

"While a more conciliatory feeling is manifested between the parties at issue it does not seem likely that we can do much toward a settlement. This does not mean, of course, that we shall relax in our efforts, but at present we are unable to accomplish much. The chamber's committee will take advantage of any opportunity that may occur to make itself useful, but it cannot hurry matters to a conclusion."

POSTAL SERVICE HIT HERE.

The Greater Boston postal service felt the strike, although the central postoffice exchange, which is connected with the postal garage in South Boston and with some of the branch stations, was not tied up. The four operators in the Federal building were instructed by the union to stay at their posts. But there are about thirty branch stations which are not linked up with the central postoffice exchange. The only way to reach by telephone is through the regular outside service, now tied up. Some of these outside stations which are dependent on ordinary telephone service are:

Needham, Arlington, Arlington Heights, Atlantic, Auburndale, Belmont, Braintree, Dunkin Island, Chestnut Hill, Deer Island, East Milton, East Weymouth, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Long Island, Malden, Mattapan, Melrose, Medford, Medford Hillside, Melrose Highlands, Milton, Auburn, Needham, Newton, Newton Centre, Newton Highlands, Newton Lower Falls, Newton Upper Falls, Newtonville, North Weymouth, Quincy, Readville, Revere, Roslindale, South Braintree, South Weymouth, Squantum, Tufts College, Waban, Waltham, Watertown, Waverly, Wellesley, Wellesley Hills, Wellesley Hills, West Medford, West Newton, West Roxbury, Winthrop and Wollaston.

Reports from outside points showed that the union had carried out its general strike plans. Worcester reported all operators affected by the strike in the city proper. In addition to more than 100 throughout Worcester county. In the smaller county towns it was believed that service would not be affected, as the operators in these exchanges are not unionized.

A crowd in front of the Main Exchange was jammed with people when the telephone strike became an accomplished fact this morning. Twenty policemen under Sergeant Laffey of station 2 were lined up on both sides of Milk street and on other streets busily engaged in moving the curious onlookers and traffic watching the 20 telephone girl pickets.

Cheery cries of "Hold out, girls, we're with you," from an approving passing teamster with a union button pinned on his shirt were the only demonstrations.

Fifteen pickets, smartly dressed and confidently smiling, were on hand as early as 6:15 o'clock to perform their three-hour tour of duty. Shortly after that time Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the local union, and Miss Bridie Powers of the adjustment board, giving no outward evidence of their long, sleepless night over the strike problem, appeared. Neither would be interviewed and at 8 o'clock started on a round of inspection of the other exchanges in a taxi.

Arm in arm in groups of twos and threes the pickets marched up and down Milk street and around Oliver street, chatting quietly. They had been well-coached and would not discuss anything in relation to the strike save to declare emphatically that they were going to win.

One man, employe of the company, however, was greeted with a mediated but none the less withering "scab, yellow dog," when he hurried out of the building. The girl who uttered the exclamation would not tell what he was or the cause for the stinging rebuke.

Mary Silver was the captain of the picketing squad, and quietly supervised the picketing. Mary M. Jones, vice-president of the local union, watched the picketing for a while, and was joined by Miss E. Mathews, the vice-president of the international union, down from Springfield on an early morning train.

The pickets had nothing to do. Only the long distance operators entered the building, and these were made known to them by sleeve-bands marked "L. D." Smiles and "good lucks" were exchanged.

OXFORD STREET PATROL.

Without the slightest disorder, and the operators themselves in holiday spirit, the telephone strike was put quietly into effect at the Beach Exchange on Oxford street.

The eight girl operators employed on the night shift put up their sets and quietly left on the stroke of 7. Of the approximately 250 girls employed on the day side, none went in or attempted to go in. Only Miss Margaret Hogan, the chief operator of the exchange, who is said not to be affected by the strike order, went into the exchange building.

Promptly at 7 o'clock ten girl pickets, in charge of a captain, began patrolling Oxford street. This picket detail will be relieved every three hours.

The girls, several of whom wore heavy fur coats to protect themselves from the chill of the early morning, were in excellent spirits. Arm and arm they strolled up and down Oxford street, exchanging laughing greetings as they passed each other.

No strike-breakers appeared, and only a few girls employed on the day shift came near the exchange. These few were told by the pickets that the strike actually was in progress, and went quietly away. None of them attempted to go to work at the usual hour.

GIRLS HOPEFUL.

Sergeant J. T. O'Day of Station 4 was early on the scene with a detail including Patrolmen L. F. O'Donnell, John Gilt and William Foley. Sergeant O'Day stood in the doorway of the exchange to avert possible trouble, but the only confusion arose when one of the night girls who had gone out and joined the picketing remembered that she had left her pocketbook inside. Escorted by Sergeant O'Day, she re-entered the building and retrieved the pocketbook without incident.

GIRLS ALL HOPEFUL.

The girls were in hopeful mood and declared the strike would continue until their demands were granted.

"The operating room must be a dead sight, without anyone working in it," called one of the picketers to a friend.

"You betcha!" was the laughing response.

A visit to the operating rooms of the Beach Exchange shortly before nine o'clock proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that telephone service was absolutely paralyzed. A Boston American reporter made a thorough inspection and found no operators at work.

Telephone service in Cambridge was completely tied up. At the Inman street exchange not one of the 200 operators went to work. About a dozen pickets patrolled the streets in the vicinity of the exchange. Two Cambridge police officers were on duty at the exchange.

The courts in East Boston and Chelsea suffered as the result of the strike. Pickets were on duty at each of the telephone exchanges. The girls, five in number, were relieved every hour.

Revere and Winthrop the girls went on picket duty as soon as the strike hour came.

Throughout the Newton exchanges pickets were on duty from 7 o'clock, stopping everyone who approached the exchanges.

Out of 150 operators at the Fields Corner telephone exchange, 195 were picketing. One, who is said to be a member of the union, remained at work.

In Allston the operators went out. Pickets patrolled in front of each exchange.

After attempting for about an hour this morning to answer emergency calls at the Quincy Exchange, the chief operator and some employes of the exchange abandoned even this service as impracticable.

John F. Scott, commercial manager of the exchange, announced that one operator came to strike and reported for work this morning.

Mayor Whiton issued instructions for the police this morning that in cases where a physician was needed, a police officer should be notified. Police headquarters will notify the nearest physician.

PRAYERFUL VISITOR ACCUSED OF BREAK

Charles H. Carlin said his prayers in the Bethany Rescue Mission on Hanover street before making his alleged attempt to break and enter the tailor shop on the floor above the mission, for which he was held in $1,000 bail in Municipal Court today by Superintendent James Brown of the mission said he saw Carlin going up stairs after the services and summoned the police. The contents of the shop had been strewn around the floor, but nothing was missed, so the breaking and entering charge alone was made against Carlin.

Nickels Dropped in Phones Today Are Gone Forever

Don't drop any nickels in pay station boxes while the telephone operators' strike is in progress.

They won't be returned to you.

In stations where it is necessary to deposit a nickel in order to call the operator after removing the receiver from the hook, the operator ordinarily taps a return key that causes the coin to drop back, in the event that the charge is more than five cents or the number called does not answer.

With no operators on duty, there is no one to hit the return key, and the nickel is lost.

PICKETS DOLLED UP IN EASTER BONNETS

Girls on Parade Get Out Finest Toggery, and You Can't Blame 'Em

"Hello, Helen! Gee, but it's a corking day for a picket!" shouted one hello girl to another as they joined the pickets in front of telephone headquarters, No. 119 Milk street. Helen lives in Dorchester, and she was a little late in reporting for picket duty. And there was a reason. Helen appeared in her Easter Sunday outfit, bonnet and all.

But Helen was not the only little striker who appeared in new toggery.

"I suppose you're going to make this strike a social event," a reporter asked one of the picketers.

"Well, you wouldn't expect us to come picketing here in our every-day clothes," confessed the prettiest little striker. "There are a whole lot of people looking at us, and they're all ready to criticise. I think it's O. K. for us girls to look good, anyway."

"I was afraid I'd be late, so I took a taxi," said a lithe and willowy blond as she joined the ranks of the picket.

"You like fun you were afraid of being late," put in companion-of-the-board when they are working. "I know one girl who actually waited to step out of the taxi and show off your new dress, gown! But really, honest to goodness, your dress is awfully pretty. I always did like that shade."

With an assortment of Spring coats and new hats and shoes adorning every striker, it was only natural that Miss Julia S. O'Connor, president of the Telephone Operatives' Union, had difficulty in restricting the pickets to the allotted numbers. Little groups of girls strolling gracefully along to do picket duty to which they had not been assigned. Miss O'Connor, who is thoroughly businesslike, objected to this, as she figured that if the picket line were too large its effectiveness would be lost; in fact, would cause congestion on the sidewalks.

"Most of these girls are not supposed to be here at all," Miss O'Connor explained. "But they said, 'But I can't keep them away." And their new Spring finery was the answer.

Despite all the inconveniences caused by the strike, Boston humor had its humorous side. In offices all over town practical jokes passed in the form of: "Hello, Jones or Mr. Smith, somebody wants you on the telephone." In many cases unsuspecting ones were caught, while their fellow-employes chuckled.

Only Three Girls Left at Nashua to Handle Emergency Business

Nashua, N. H., April 15.—Forty operators are out at the Nashua Exchange and the city is tied up. Girls are picketing the exchange building in Factory street.

Two supervisors, Miss Elizabeth Rees and Miss Lillian Atwood, and Chief Operator Mrs. G. F. Pushee, are taking care of all emergency fire, police, hospital and physicians' calls.

The wire repairmen are working. They will hold a meeting in Manchester this evening to take a strike vote. William Frazier, local delegate to the council, is in charge.

10,000 Subscribers at Brockton Are Cut Off From Outside World

Brockton, April 15.—Only calls of the most urgent character are being answered today at the Brockton exchange. Ten thousand Brockton subscribers were cut off from the outside world when the 115 telephone operators left their switchboards. The girls on picket duty were cheered lustily. The city is alive with messenger boys. The police and fire station wires are kept open.

425 Out of 455 Phone Girls of Springfield Quit the Switchboard

Springfield, April 15.—That 425 out of the 455 operators at the local exchange of this city were out on strike this morning was the announcement of Mary E. Mathews, secretary of the Telephone Operators' Union, as she left here for Boston today.

Miss Mathews was extremely optimistic about the outcome of the strike and said that she would join the other officers of the union on strike work immediately upon her arrival in Boston.

Two hundred plant employes are also out. The union has agreed to furnish the operators for police, fire, hospital and newspaper calls.

Only Two Left in Fall River Exchange; One Is the Manager

Fall River, April 15.—Two operators, one of them Manager Spaulding of the local exchange, were at their posts for duty after 7 o'clock this morning in the local exchange. Approximately one hundred young women, including several who have dropped work at the call of the union.

Pickets went on duty as soon as the strike hour sounded and patrolled the streets in the vicinity of the exchange building.

Manager Spaulding has arranged for emergency calls for the police, fire and other municipal departments during the day.

Hartford Phone Operators Vote to Strike, but Put Off Action Until Today

Hartford, Ct., April 15.—At a meeting of the Hartford local of the Telephone Operators' Union it was voted unanimously in favor of a strike. Strike action, however, was postponed until Friday pending a conference with telephone officials. There are 300 telephone operators employed here by the Southern New England Telephone Company.

28 Out of 30 at the Portsmouth, N. H., Board Join in the Big Strike

Portsmouth, N. H., April 15.—Twenty operators of the thirty in the local exchange, with the exception of one non-union member and the chief operator, walked out at 7 o'clock today. Local Manager E. H. Drew states that he will try and provide service for hospitals, fire and police departments. The strikers called a meeting at 10 o'clock at the Rockingham. A dozen or more are on the picket duty at the exchange and railroad station. It is thought that J. H. Bobie, assistant superintendent of traffic, located at Manchester, will attempt to transfer non-union operators from other districts to this city.

Providence Police Fear Crime Wave Without Telephone Service

Providence, April 15.—This city is completely in the grip of the telephone strike, and the police fear that a crime wave will follow in its wake because of the belief of thugs that a getaway will be possible before any alarm can be given.

Marshall Baker, a Westminster street business man, was attacked by thugs and blackjacked early in the day and his assailant arrested by citizens.

Men operators will take their strike vote tonight, and operators at Wickford and Narragansett Pier divisions have already joined the strikers.

HOLIDAY AT HOULTON TO WELCOME COLONEL HUME

Houlton, Me., April 15.—All business places closed for an hour to welcome Colonel Frank M. Hume of the 103d Regiment, who arrived in his home town today. Factories, stores and dwellings were decorated with flags and bunting and whistles and bells were set going when the Colonel appeared. The $10,000 fire auto truck was polished up and on the front seat rode the colonel, waving his hat to the cheering natives by the hundred. Following the truck was the touring car of the colonel's uncle, Jacob Houlton Snyder, containing Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Ludwig, who are to entertain the colonel and Mrs. Hume. A banquet by the Meduxnekeag Club will be given tonight in honor of Colonel Hume.

BROOKLINE GIRL GOES TO FRANCE FOR Y. M. C. A.

Miss Lucile P. Pike, daughter of Henry Luther Pike of No. 154 Kent street, Brookline, has gone to France in the business department of the overseas Y. M. C. A. She will remain as long as a force of office workers is needed to convey to the association work overseas.

STRIKING PHONE GIRLS IN NEAR PANIC

Six Caught in Crush Collapse; Others Are Thrown Down Stairway

tion 5 blocked the girls from going down the escape, but the stairways became choked.

Hundreds of girls tried to pass out the main entrance to the hall and another long line went through the offices of the carmen's union and out into the same hallway by another door. The crush came when both lines met at the head of the stairway on the third floor.

Girls became wedged there, and in their struggles to get free were knocked down. In the great crush panic began to faint.

One girl collapsed entirely at the head of the stairs and had to be carried down by two porters. Another red-haired girl wearing a fur around her neck cried out that she was going to faint and fell back on the shoulders of the girls behind her.

Miss O'Connor, May Matthews, secretary of the union, and half a dozen newspapermen stationed themselves on the sidewalk and caught scores of girls as they were about to fall.

President Edward Higgins of the Boston Central Labor Union and other officials tried to keep the line moving with order, but before they succeeded in doing so five girls had fainted and been carried out, and half a dozen more had fallen down the stairway.

It had been announced before the rush hour that the overflow meeting would be held in Wells Memorial, but Miss O'Connor abandoned this plan precipitately after the happenings at Fay Hall.

"We won't attempt to meet again today," she said, "and we will hold no meeting until we get a suitable place in which to meet."

U. S. Army Hospital, Where Wounded Are Being Treated, Is Left Without Service

More than 10,000 subscribers of the Brookline Exchange, which includes Chestnut Hill, Newton and Parker Hill, Roxbury, were affected by the strike of the 156 telephone operators, who walked out this morning.

In Brookline are more than 12,500 telephone stations, one of the largest suburban exchanges in the Greater Boston district. Numerous hospitals are located within the exchange, and they were affected by the strike.

The hospitals include the United States Army General Base Hospital No. 10, where hundreds of soldiers from overseas are being cared for; Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, New England Baptist Hospital, Infants' Hospital, Robert Breck Brigham Hospital, Channing Hospital, Summit Hospital and others.

YOU MEN WHO PAY THE FAMILY SHOE BILLS

Tramping 18 miles a day, Mr. H. M. Foreman, a mail carrier of Allentown, Pa., found that shoes with ordinary soles last about one month. But he says a pair of Neolin-soled shoes gave him more than nine months of service, in which time he walked over 4,000 miles.

His experience shows how you may save shoe money by providing your family with Neolin-soled shoes, which give extra wear where other shoes wear out quickest.

You can get Neolin-soled shoes in any type of shoe you want. Prices are about the same as for shoes that give only ordinary wear, sometimes they are even less. If your dealer hasn't the style you want, he can get it for you quickly. Remember, Neolin Soles are guaranteed to be the best soles should be. They are available everywhere for re-soling as well as on new shoes. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

BURLESON STANDS PAT UPON DEMAND FOR REFERENCE TO DRIVER

WIRES TO AMERICAN EDITOR

Postmaster-General Declares Phone Strike Situation Is Up to Local Officials

Postmaster General A. C. Burleson stands pat in the telephone strike.

If the telephone operators and their allied 12,000 telephone workers wish their demands for a wage increase considered, they must first submit their wage schedule to General Manager William H. Driver, Jr., of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Mr. Burleson made his position clear today in a telegram to the editor of the American.

Furthermore, Mr. Burleson says that in dealing with the operators in New England he is adhering to the policies of the War Labor Board as approved by President Wilson.

Mr. Burleson says again that by submitting their demands to Mr. Driver the operators would not in any way jeopardize the principle of collective bargaining.

WOULD DESTROY PRINCIPLE.

Miss Julia S. O'Connor, president of the Boston Telephone Operators' Union, said in a statement that should the operators consent to submit their demands to Mr. Driver and let him make a secret recommendation to the War Labor Board, such action would destroy the principle of collective bargaining which has obtained between the local company and its operators.

Mr. Burleson says in his telegram to the American that the local officials of the New England company have always been willing to receive the demands of its employes.

He insists that there is not and has not been any necessity for a strike by the employes. Had they presented their demands as requested, he says, all matters in controversy could have easily been settled in a manner just to all.

Miss O'Connor gave as the reason the operators refused to submit their demands to Mr. Driver and through him on to the Wire Control Board in Washington, the assertion that many of the board members were opposed to the principle of collective bargaining. She also accused Postmaster Burleson and the Wire Control Board of "passing the buck" in collusion with the local officials of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Editor of the American, when the trouble between the operators and the company reached the deadlock stage, wired Postmaster-General Burleson in an effort to avert the paralysis of home and business communication by telephone, the threatened strike promised to bring.

AMERICAN SUGGESTS PLAN.

The American suggested to Postmaster-General Burleson the following plan, approved by Miss Julia S. O'Connor of the Operators' Union, to bring the company and its operators into agreement over their wage dispute:

The appointment of an arbitration board by Mr. Burleson; this arbitration board to consist of a representative of the Postoffice Department, a representative of the operators and a third disinterested party, Henry B. Endicott, former chairman of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Committee of Public Safety and the premier arbitrator of labor disputes in New England.

Mr. Burleson in his reply to the editor of the American pays high tribute to Mr. Endicott thus:

"I appreciate the high character of Mr. Endicott and the services he no doubt would render on such a board."

NO NECESSITY FOR BOARD.

But he goes on to say, "there is no necessity for such a board, as the necessary organization is already set up to handle the matter.

"It would not be fair to take the matter out of the hands of the local telephone company officials," he adds, "and appoint an arbitration committee just because a former employe of the company does not wish to submit the matter through regular channels."

According to Mr. Burleson's statement of the position of the government towards the operators, they must follow these channels if they wish their demands for a wage increase considered.

First, the operators must submit their schedule for a wage increase to General Manager Driver of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Mr. Driver shall then send the schedule with its recommendation attached on to the operating board who will consider the wage difficulty.

Should they decide against granting the wage increase demanded, the operators then could appeal the decision to the wire control board in Washington.

But this is just what Miss O'Connor, speaking for 5,000 New England operators, and other allied workers totaling 20,000, refuses to do.

And there the matter stands.

Switchboards Deserted by 650 Girl Operators of Portland and Maine Cities

Portland, Me., April 15.—Six hundred and fifty Maine telephone operators quit their switchboards this morning. One hundred and fifty operators quit in this city. The company heads sent out appeals to all former girl operators, even those who had worked from ten to fifteen years ago and are not affiliated with the union. But few of these responded.

The Lewiston telephone management says it expects to provide service at an early hour.

Worcester in State of Chaos as Result of Telephone Strike

Worcester, April 15.—Promptly at 7 o'clock today the operators on duty at the New England Telephone Exchange pulled the plugs from the sockets, turned off the buzzer switches and walked from the building.

After that not one of the 450 girls returned to her post and business in Worcester is in a state of chaos. Several operators were allowed to remain on guard for emergency calls, such as fire and police. The toll operators were also on the job, but had nothing to do except read novels and devour sandwiches.

Court Business at Dedham Suffers as Result of Phone Tieup

Thirty operators are out at the Hyde Park exchange. Misses Hilda Rein, Margaret McCarthy, Tillie Anderson, May Curran, Annie Bryce, Catherine Curran, Elizabeth Vogel and Emma Hartnett did picket duty during the day.

By tomorrow the forty men in the unit which covers Hyde Park, Canton, Norwood, Dedham and Bellevue, will strike unless in the meantime the striking girls return to work. These men are affiliated with the electrical workers.

Business at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Probate Court and the Land Court was greatly affected, and it was said by court officials that work would be greatly handicapped.

The business at the court house, where the criminal session is on, was somewhat hindered.

The only operator on duty at the Dedham Exchange was Miss Emily Tully, the chief operator, who handled emergency calls.

Misses May Gannett and Ethel Roche, Mrs. Edward Gilbert, Mrs. Edward J. Morgan, Misses Edith Murray, Margaret Flannagan and Mrs. Charles Hart and Miss Marie Magallete performed picket duty.

One Operator Handles Calls in Lexington and Arlington Offices

Lexington, April 15.—The sixteen day telephone operators are out on strike, but the chief operator, Miss Ellen T. Chahane of Concord, is working alone at the switchboard, since the chief operators do not belong to the union and in capacity are officials of the company.

Some local service is being maintained in Arlington, the chief operator being in charge of the exchange. Calls to outside places cannot be made.

STRIKING OPERATORS WHO WENT ON PICKET DUTY TODAY

Arbiters Not Needed, Says Burleson to American

In reply to a suggestion from the Boston American that he name a board of three, including Henry B. Endicott, to act as arbitrators in preventing a strike of the telephone operators, Postmaster-General Burleson today sent the American the following telegram:

Answering your wire in dealing with the operators in New England, the department has adhered to the policies laid down by the War Labor Board, which were approved by the President.

The method outlined in my telegram of Saturday would not in any way jeopardize the principle of collective bargaining. The officials of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company have been instructed by me and have at all times been willing to receive the demands of its employes. They have shown a disposition to be just and fair, and for that reason it would not be fair to take the matter out of their hands and appoint an arbitration committee just because a former employe of the company does not wish to submit the matter through regular channels.

I appreciate the high character of Mr. Endicott and the services he no doubt would render on such a board, but there is no necessity for such a board, as the necessary organization is already set up to handle the matter. There is no necessity of a strike on the part of the employes in New England. And there has not been any, as all matters in controversy could be speedily considered and settled in a manner just to all if they were presented as requested. This the employes refuse to do.

(Signed) A. S. BURLESON, Postmaster-General.

TO THE PUBLIC:

We have been formally notified of a strike of union telephone operators, and that they intend there shall be serious interruption of telephone service in Boston and throughout New England on Tuesday, April 15.

It is a misfortune that our efforts to avert that situation have failed.

Under these circumstances, telephone users are advised that they should not depend upon telephone service, even for the care of emergencies.

Matt B. Jones, President of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, received the following telegram dated:

"Washington, D. C., April 14, 1919.

"The telephone systems are now operated by the government, and you are its representative. In case the threatened strike in New England actually occurs, take every action possible to render the public service and see that it suffers as little inconvenience as possible from any action taken by the operators.

"A. S. BURLESON."

Persistent effort will be made to restore normal conditions with promptness.

NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO.
W. R. Driver, Jr., General Manager.

POLICE GETTING GOOD SERVICE BY PHONES

Police telephones throughout the city are in operation, with two operators on duty at police headquarters to take care of calls. A line connects each of the nineteen stations with police headquarters, where there is connection with fire headquarters. At the East Dedham street station there is a direct line to City Hall.

Officers all over the city are instructed by Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley to give special attention to relaying all sick, accident, emergency and death calls to their nearest call box, there to be telephoned in to police stations, where messengers will be sent out to notify those interested.

In addition, ambulances are on call at every station to handle emergency calls, and to facilitate the care of the stricken. Superintendent Crowley urges automobile owners to loan their cars when accident makes speedy transportation necessary. At Station 6, the East Dedham street station, there is an automobile, which, in case of accident to the water system, will hasten to Albany street and enlist the services of the wrecking crew.

An emergency sick call was put through when, from the Haymarket exchange, through the main operator, a request for Dr. Louis Mann of Matapan, was sent by relatives of Mrs. Illuzetelo, of the West End, who is seriously ill. The message was taken to the doctor's house by a policeman of the Matapan station.

Several calls have been attempted through the Haymarket exchange, but only one, put through, by the chief operator, has succeeded.

Admiral Sims Deeply Touched by Warm Welcome

Newport, R. I., April 15.—Admiral William S. Sims today said of his reception on his return here:

"In my reply to Mayor Mahoney's address of welcome, I tried to make it clear that the demonstration was in reality more a tribute to the efficiency of the navy, but for whatever of this tribute was intended as a welcome home to me, in my capacity as a resident of Newport, I am profoundly grateful.

"I could not have imagined either the extent, the generosity or the warmth of such a welcome as was accorded to me, not only by the officials of the city and of the army and navy, but by all of the citizens, including the dear school children and even the babies."

RESENT STORY ABOUT 'STRIKE BREAKERS'

Phone Pickets Declare New York Girls as Union Members Could Not Come to Boston

Striking telephone operators' pickets, patrolling the vicinity of the company's main exchange, today were at first alarmed and then indignant over a report that New York girls were to be sent to Boston to work as strike-breakers.

Where the rumor started it would be difficult to determine, but word was passed from one picket to another that arrangements already had been made to send 500 New York girls to Boston, and that others would follow.

"We know nothing about this report. If it is true, we haven't heard of it," was the statement made by telephone company headquarters, when the matter was called to official attention.

"They wouldn't dare put New York girls in our places, even if they were willing to act as strike-breakers," declared one picketer. "Furthermore, I know they wouldn't be willing to come to Boston, because they are union members the same as we."

PICKETS ARE FOOTSORE.

The first picketers had four hours and a half steady patrolling, and they were becoming footsore and weary by the time their relief showed up.

The second relief was due at ten o'clock, but owing to the meeting of the striking operators, did not arrive at that time. The girls who had begun picketing at 7 o'clock stuck to their posts however, until at 11:30 motor trucks carrying the relief rolled up.

As the hours wore on, a few of the picketers, who had been instructed not to talk to anyone, forgot about what lax in discipline, and soon were telling their troubles to sympathetic soldiers and sailors who were watching the patrol with interest.

KEPT ON THE MOVE.

Prompt action by the captain of the picketers kept walking those who were willing to stand still and rest while they talked.

One fair picketer was highly indignant over the remark of a passer-by, who, she said, had declared he was a subscriber, that "you girls don't need a raise; you all dress like heiresses now."

"We'd be willing to show him how little we have in the bank," she declared.

Telephone company headquarters announced that an official statement was in process of preparation, and would probably be made public this afternoon.

Wakefield's Retail Business Hit Hard by Telephone Strike

Wakefield, April 15.—Retail business, especially in markets and groceries, was nearly disrupted by the telephone operators' strike today. Many automobiles were brought out and messengers put on with the driver for transaction of business.

There were twenty girls employed at the telephone exchange. Not one appeared this morning. The chief operator is on duty, but handling only local calls.

Chief Cade of the fire department issued a notice today to all persons to run to the nearest fire alarm box, rather than depend upon the telephone.

Twenty "Hello" Girls Quit Work at Devens and 60 in Ayer Office

Camp Devens, Ayer, April 15.—Twenty girls who operate the switchboard in the telephone office in this cantonment did not report for work today. The camp service was looked after by Miss Tessie Tierney of Springfield and Gatha Forbes of Vermont. They were unable to get any toll calls through.

The telephone company, it is stated, lodge and feed the girl operators on the premises. There were seventy. Of that number at least sixty obeyed the strike call. In doing so they relinquished their rights to the company's protection and had to leave the house, it is stated.

Miss Bertie O'Neil of Boston directed the work of pickets.

Miss O'Neil said the union would take care of the girls who lost their homes at the telephone exchange.

Strike Cripples Phone Connections Between Connecticut and Bay State

New Haven, April 15.—The only effect of the strike of New England telephone operators was the inability of subscribers in Connecticut to communicate with subscribers in Massachusetts points. Calls to most Massachusetts points were accepted only to be delayed.

Partial organization of operators in Bridgeport and Hartford has been completed under the direction of Miss Theresa Sullivan of Boston.

ENGINEER BLAMED FOR FATAL WRECK ON N. Y. C.

Washington, April 15.—Responsibility for the rear-end collision on the New York Central, in which 23 persons were killed and 71 injured near South Byron, N. Y., on January 12, was today placed upon Engineman Priedley. In his report the public service commission of New York and the bureau of public safety of the railway administration today stated that Priedley "failed properly to observe and to be governed by automatic box signal indications."

Strikers Hold Forth Where First Phone Message Was Sent

Salem, April 15—In the same building where Alexander Graham Bell, founder of the telephone, made his first successful demonstration on Feb. 12, 1877, by talking from Salem to Boston and gave the first telephone message in the world, the Salem telephone operators and co-workers of Greater Salem assembled to receive instructions for today's strike.

The situation is quiet. Scores of operators are performing picket duty.

RUSH MESSAGES TO TELEGRAPH COMPANIES

Extra Force Put On to Handle Increased Business of Western Union

Telephone users rushed to the telegraph offices today with their business when it became apparent that the telephone service had been suspended by the strike, and the fifty-four branch offices of the Western Union Telegraph Company were deluged with telegrams. The Western Union had anticipated the situation by hiring 100 extra delivery boys and putting on an extra force of operators.

"The regular force, together with the emergency force, are experiencing no difficulty in transmitting and delivering all the extra business that has been filed with the company up to noon," said Commercial Superintendent Crane. "The fact that not all of the boys we hired for the situation have been used up to now indicates how little we are affected by the strike. The extra business we are handling is reflected in the latest hourly report from our branch offices which shows an average of ten message not completed in transmission to each office when ordinarily the average would be none.

IN OTHER CITIES.

"Outside of Boston, as far as we are concerned, the strike is not making itself felt as much as in Boston. Our through business to New York and other big cities is unaffected, of course, and our offices in the larger New England cities report that they are getting telephone service more or less satisfactorily. It these cities, like in Boston, however, we are putting on an additional delivery force and are prepared to deliver all telegrams."

The report of the Postal Telegraph Company is not as optimistic as that of the Western Union. At the former it was stated by Superintendent Kinney's secretary that the New England offices of the company have sent sendin in a steady stream of reports to the effect that the telephone exchanges had suspended their service and asking for authority to put on extra delivery help.

NO DELAY IN POSTAL.

Earlier in the day the Postal had bulletined all its offices with instructions to use every effort to deliver telegrams by messenger to all points reached by telephone from the telegraph offices before the strike. No expense was to be spared in the delivery of death telegrams, and authority was given in all cases the hiring of an extra delivery force.

In Boston district, up to noon, the volume of increased business due to the strike was still being handled without delay by the company. Extra messenger boys had been installed in all the branch offices to deliver this business, ordinarily handled by telephone.

U. S. SUPPORT FOR FRENCH CLAIMS

Agreement on Treaty Terms Indicates Guarantee Against Future German Aggression

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, April 15.—Semi-official confirmation of the report that the French claims with reference to the Rhine defence's have been approved by the United States to the satisfaction of the French envoys indicates that France, Great Britain and America are virtually in an alliance to prevent any possible German aggression across the Rhine in the future.

In other words, Great Britain and America underake to guarantee for all time that there shall be no hostile action against France across the Rhine.

While the American delegates will not admit that it goes this far, it is intimated that Premier Clemenceau will make a statement when he is ready.

FRANCE THE "OUTPOST."

It has been known for some time that France's proposals include a zone of fifty kilometres (thirty miles) east of the Rhine to be policed for an indefinite period by allied and associated troops.

Whether this means that there will be an American army on the Rhine indefinitely cannot be definitely ascertained. But in French conference circles it is pointed out that President Wilson has said that France is the outpost of civilization and it is believed that he has not changed his view.

Thus it may be possible that an agreement may provide that if France should again be attacked, Great Britain and America would come to her assistance.

Now that it is settled that the Germans will be called in April 25 the conference secretaries will immediately meet to settle the question of drafting the treaty.

"EVERYONE IS SATISFIED."

It is possible to state that while the treaty will be regarded as one document for all of the central powers, the plan now is to have it in four sections.

The first will be for the Germans; the second section, which will be ready a few days after the first is completed, will be for Austria; then will come Bulgaria and Turkey.

It is understood here today that Premier Lloyd George's forthcoming speech in the House of Commons at London will probably be a full statement of the conference work so far.

"Everyone is satisfied," said an American delegate. "Premier Lloyd George will make a statement which will probably pull him through any financial difficulties that have arisen in England during his absence."

Wilson's Statement Shows German Problems Will Be Cleaned Up First

By ROBERT J. PREW.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, April 15.—The interpretation placed today upon President Wilson's statement that the German envoys will be called in about April 25 was that the conference has decided to clean up all the German problems first.

However, in view of the optimistic tone of the President's reference to the settlement of the Adriatic question it is not impossible that the terms to Austria will be completed as soon as the first treaty for Germany.

The statement was evidently the result of a decision that the time had come to let the world know just what progress had been made by the "Big Four."

The conference between President Wilson and Premier Orlando of Italy, which was devoted to a discussion of the fate of the Adriatic port of Fiume, lasted all day.

A sharp divergence of views was disclosed as soon as the conference began. The President, it is understood, insisted that Fiume is the natural outlet to the sea for the new State of Jugo-Slavia, and that if it is granted to Italy the award would certainly be a menace to the world's peace in the future.

As the conference drew towards a close President Wilson had not shifted his position, while the Italian Premier continued to back up Italy's claims. The council of four was expected to take up the whole Adriatic problem today and canvass it thoroughly.

"At the outset the adherents of Lenine and Trotzky in Russia numbered probably not more than 20,000," said Count Frazzo, "Today they are numbered by the millions. The situation is hopeless."

WASHINGTON, HANOVER AND ELM STS.

EULOGY OF MRS. HEARST BY BISHOP HARDING

Washington, April 15.—The following tribute to the memory of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst was written by the Right Rev. Alfred Harding, D. D., Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and a trustee of the National Cathedral School for Girls, founded by Mrs. Hearst.

By RIGHT REV. ALFRED HARDING, D. D.

Over the main doorway of the National Cathedral School for Girls is this legend, carved in stone, "Founded by Phoebe A. Hearst, A. D. 1900." This has made her name and her gift of the noble building in which the school is carried on well known and loved by all the generations of the pupils since the time of its opening, nearly nineteen years ago.

At the morning devotions of the school today the principal, Miss Jessie C. McDonald, announced the sad news of Mrs. Hearst's death and spoke fitting words of eulogy of her life, so beautiful in its widespread deeds of philanthropy, and especially in the promotion of educational institutions.

HONORED BY STUDENTS.

Miss McDonald reminded the pupils that on the occasion of Mrs. Hearst's last visit to the school, in 1916, after she had met and spoken to each member of the class to be graduated that year, she was unanimously elected an honorary member of the class of 1916, and was enrolled as an alumna of the school. Mrs. Hearst was gratified by this action and warmly expressed her appreciation of it. Since then the class, through its secretary, has kept in touch with her and sent tender messages to her during her late illness.

At that visit, she took great interest in looking over plans then under consideration for the enlargement of the school, made necessary by the increase in its membership. She expressed to the Bishop her full confidence in the administration by the trustees, a body identical with the Chapter of Washington Cathedral, of the trust that she had committed to them and her joy at the good work the school was doing.

It was during her residence in Washington, when her husband was a member of the United States Senate, that she became actively interested in the establishment of kindergartens here and in other cities, at a time when they were not a part of the public school system.

GIFT GRATEFULLY ACCEPTED.

She also discovered that there was great need of a school of high character for the daughters of members of Congress and officers of the army and navy, and of men in the service of the government, to receive a thorough education under Christian influences, and conceived the idea of founding such a school in Washington.

Desirous of securing the perpetuity of such an institution, she turned to the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation as an organization established for the building of a great cathedral in the nation and for carrying on a wide work of education, missions, charity and worship, as outlined in its charter from the Congress of the United States, as a body with such guarantee of permanence as would make her undertaking sure to be carried on in all future years.

Her gift was gratefully accepted by the trustees of the cathedral and the site was chosen on the northeast corner of the beautiful cathedral close for the erection of the building.

Mr. Robert W. Gibson, at that time president of the Architectural League of New York city, was chosen to be the architect, and his beautiful design received Mrs. Hearst's warm approval. It is Italian renaissance and its total cost was more than $200,000.

CORNERSTONE LAID.

The building is of Indiana limestone, of which the great cathedral nearby is being constructed. It is fireproof in construction, the beams and girders being of steel, the staircase of iron and marble, and the wainscoting of marble and tile.

The Greek idea of having all the portions of the house carried out in detail, in beauty and solidity is maintained here, and every convenience for the students that could contribute to their comfort, pleasure and instruction was considered.

The cornerstone was laid by the late Right Rev. H. Y. Satterlee, the first Bishop of Washington, on Ascension Day, May 11, A. D. 1899, and the completed building was dedicated by him on Ascension Day, May 24, A. D. 1900.

The school was opened in the Fall of that year, since which time it has had an uninterrupted career of prosperity and usefulness. So great has been the demand for opportunity to attend it that another hall had to be erected two years ago on the property adjacent.

BISHOP SATTERLEE'S TRIBUTE.

At the time of the dedication of the school Bishop Satterlee in his address spoke as follows:

"A year ago on this Ascension Day, after the dark storm clouds passed away and the golden sunshine burst through the clouds, we laid on this spot the cornerstone of this Cathedral School for Girls.

"In the compass of the intervening year, through the splendid generosity of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, whose name will go down to posterity in connection with the first hall of Christian education erected on the Cathedral close, this beautiful Cathedral School for Girls has been built.

"All honor and praise to her whose holy thought for Christ and His children has taken already so beautiful and substantial a form."

This noble gift of the Cathedral School and her other notable gift to the University of California of the Hearst Memorial Mining Building and twenty scholarships for women will perpetuate her great interest in the cause of education. When we recall the fact that in her young womanhood she herself taught school, we can understand how that experience developed in later years into those lines of educational advancement.

GRACIOUS PERSONALITY.

Mrs. Hearst had a very gracious and charming personality and remarkable executive ability. Her interest in and her work in behalf of many philanthropic undertakings and her many gifts of charity will cause her to be remembered as one of the noblest figures of American womanhood. We may fitly close this tribute to her memory by quoting the prayer that is offered daily at the National Cathedral for Founders and Benefactors, which will have an added significance as we use it and think of the beloved founder of the National Cathedral School for Girls.

"Grant, O Lord, that the founders, benefactors, and all those who, to the furtherance of the work of the Cathedral, faithfully offer to Thee of their prayers, their labors and their substance, may come, together with all Thy Saints, to those unspeakable joys which Thou hast prepared for them who unfeignedly love Thee; through Jesus Christ Our Lord, Amen."

Bishop Nichols to Conduct Last Rites for Mrs. Hearst at Cathedral

San Francisco, April 15.—Funeral services for the late Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at Grace Cathedral in California street, Bishop William Ford Nicholls officiating.

During the morning private services will be held at the Hearst home, Hacienda Del Pozo De Verona, at Pleasanton, at which the immediate family and a group of close friends will be in attendance, Bishop Nicholls also will officiate at the morning services.

A host of family friends, persons closely associated with Mrs. Hearst in educational and philanthropic work, will occupy the central sections of Grace Cathedral tomorrow afternoon when Bishop Nicholls delivers a memorial address.

The bishop will be assisted by the dean. The chapter of the Cathedral will be represented by its lay delegates: William H. Crocker, L. F. Monteagle, George A. Pope, Frank F. Deering and J. P. Langhorne.

The Grace Cathedral vestry choir of men and women and the male quartette of St. Luke's Church will sing the hymns:

"Lead Kindly Light," "Peace, Perfect Peace," and "Abide With Me."

Following the Cathedral services the cortege will proceed to Cypress Lawn Cemetery, where interment will be in the family mausoleum beside the body of the husband, the late Senator George Hearst. The choir will sing "I Heard a Voice From Heaven" and "Now the Laborer's Task is Over" after brief services at the cemetery.

Here Is the Coal

Showing the Very Heart of the Mine

YOU see the first stage of the journey to your home. The million and a half tons of coal that the Metropolitan Coal Company sells annually must be loaded in the way pictured. Trains of these little cars are drawn by wonderful electric engines over the miles and miles of tracks through the main thoroughfares of the mine, the timbering in which costs hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Where trolley wires have not been strung, the hauling is done by mules that for years never see the light of day.

There is a wonderful system of ventilation. Eight thousand to twenty-four thousand cubic feet of air circulates per minute through the mine. Often one meets with a sign—XXXX-10—whatever the figure it means that gas was discovered in that chamber on that date. No work is permitted until the gas is forced out by fresh air.

This gas, known as white damp, is highly explosive and has been the prime cause of mine accidents and the large loss of life in the mining industry.

So the next time a load of Metropolitan coal rolls past remember that it may have started its journey to you in a two-ton car drawn by a mule that for years had never been out of the mine. A fine illustration of the exigencies of a situation and the resources of Metropolitan service.

Why Men of Today Lack Physical Strength and Endurance Which Gave Mighty Power To Athletes of Old

Physician Says Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women Is Not Only Greatest Curse to Nation's Health, But Is Often Responsible for Failure in Business. Lack of Will Power and Physical and Mental Decay,—Explains

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Helps Put Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Veins of the Weak, Nervous and Run-Down.

Every man of today who is not strong or well as he himself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of even the most nervous, rundown people in two weeks' time in many instances.

The great power and vigor of the athletes of ancient times was probably due to the rigorous out-door life they led and the large amount of iron obtained from their coarse foods is the opinion of Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Men like Hercules, Samson and Atlas were all noted as men of blood and iron and Dr. Sullivan believes that if the men of today who are tagged out because of worry, work and other strains could follow the same methods of living as the athletes of olden times they might readily build up their strength and energy by increasing the supply of iron in their blood.

In explaining why he regards iron as absolutely essential to the greatest development of physical and mental power, Dr. Sullivan says: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live have so seriously increased the iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from nervousness and a slight nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in the blood, when without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable and unable to stand, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"In my opinion the man or lady who want to be strong, sturdy and successful must either live more as did the athletes of old or else take the iron deficiency in their blood by taking some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron. I have used Nuxated Iron in my own practice and I know of nothing more rich in organic iron and more effective for building up the system and increasing the red blood corpuscles, thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease."

Dr. T. Alphonso Wallace, physician, surgeon and formerly of the Medical Service, says, "Living in city, eating coarse food and feeding regular lives make blood rich in strength-giving iron. But this opportunity for strength-building is not open to thousands of men and women in civil life whose wearing tasks and refined food cut down their energy and vitality, make them weak, anaemic and nervous and often cause their blood to literally starve for want of iron. Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men or healthy, rosy-cheeked women, and unless this strength-giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. For this purpose I always recommend organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which I have used with such astonishing results that I am absolutely convinced it is the best remedy for anyone to build up weak, nervous, run-down people."

Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Mooseoth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says, "The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a great strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of its tremendous power to make good. I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron as directed, we could close down it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended by physicians and which is now being used by over three million people each year, is not a secret remedy but is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Lamont's Baker-Jarvis and all other druggists.

CHARGE R. I. PARK FUNDS USED IMPROPERLY

Bill Before Legislature Would Replace Members of Commission

Providence, April 15.—Rhode Island's "shoe-string park system" will be legislated out of office and a commission of five members, answerable to the General Assembly, will arrange playgrounds for children in place of automobile drives, if the act before the General Assembly is passed in the meantime, the present Metropolitan Park Commission will not receive a penny in appropriations.

The park commission is said to have been a bone of contention for several years and trouble has been brewing since 1913 when a $300,000 bond issue was authorized by the General Assembly.

State officials say all sorts of bills which include auto repairing, janitors' services, towel supplies, office rent, telephone service and various other bills, were paid out of the bond issue authorized for the sole purpose of acquiring and improving real estate.

Secretary of the park commission Henry A. Barker started a row when he declared the General Assembly sought to dominate the commission, for political purposes, such as paying political debts.

"Is it because the Metropolitan Park Commission succeeded too well at too small an expenditure? Is it because the commission is non-partisan and representative? Or the deadly influence of political axes that must be ground and political debts that must be paid in acquiring of land," asks Secretary Barker.

Frederick S. Peck, chairman of the finance committee of the House of Representatives, says the time has passed for expensive automobile drives, and believes the people demand recreation parks for children.

It is said that all save the secretary of the park commission are willing to be legislated out of office. The commission consists of E. A. Burlingame, Harry P. Cross, E. F. Ealy, Jesse P. Metcalf and Secretary Barker.

The request for a million dollar bond issue will be flatly turned down, and in its stead a new commission will be appointed, according to Representative Peck.

BELIEVE LEVAL MILL WORKER WAS SLAIN

Lawrence, April 15.—Several suspects were brought to police headquarters and examined as to what they know of the mysterious case of Jim Jaksata, a millworker whom the police believe was the victim of foul play. His body was recovered in the North Canal and was examined by the coroner for traces of violence. The body was badly decomposed.

Jaksata lived at No. 12 Aberdeen road, Methuen. He was last seen in the region of Short street, Lawrence, where, according to witnesses, he was assailed for remaining a loyal worker in the mill. The police suspect that he was followed by some of his countrymen who had ill feeling toward him.

SERBIA DENIES REPORT OF RADICAL UPRISINGS

Washington, April 15.—Serbian officials here brand as false the report from Budapest of a Bolshevist revolution in Serbia. They declared that the Budapest dispatch was the forty-fourth untrue report concerning conditions in Jugo-Slavia since the signing of the armistice.

Many of the false cable dispatches, it was said, are attributed to Italian propaganda because of the Fiume dispute.

CITED FOR BRAVERY IN A WAR BALLOON

Calais, Me., April 15.—First Class Private Leonard G. McLain of the U. S. 12th Balloon Company, which was cited for bravery in a special order, has arrived home from active service in France. He enlisted in Calais, Me., December 11, 1917, and went overseas January 20, 1918. He was in the famous Argonne Forest fight. The citation says:

"Despite the fact that shells were falling on all sides of the balloon, two so close as to tear holes in the fabric, no man left the ropes or faltered, well knowing that death was liable to come to them at any moment. The safety of the balloon was their first thought, their personal safety second. They have shown the spirit and loyalty which is expected of true soldiers." McLain says his closest call was when two comrades sleeping near him were killed by shrapnel.

Pittsfield, April 15.—Guilty of murder in the second degree is the verdict in the case of Lincoln McKinley Grant, indicted for killing Miles Hewitt, a Hancock road farmer, February 24, 1917. The defence was insanity. Sentence of life imprisonment at Charlestown was imposed.

A written confession made by Grant April 19, 1917, the day Hewitt's body was found, figured largely in the trial. After he was sentenced, Grant told the newspapermen he had no recollection of the crime.

Grant's only relative in court when the jury reported was his father, Ira Grant. His mother had returned home earlier, as two younger children were ill.

What's New in Spring Underwear?

and the answer may be found in all completeness on our big fourth floor

Or the soft satin pieces which impart a delightful sense of luxury, but aren't really extravagant at all—they last so long when properly cared for? As for fancy sets—you'd hardly believe there could be so much ingenuity in the designing of underwear. The new models in Avona corsets are here, and it's always wiser to have your fitting before choosing your new suit or dress. And the new shoes and stockings are just as fascinating as the underwear.

PROVIDENCE SOLDIER KILLED IN ACTION

Washington, April 15.—According to a late casualty list issued by the War Department Private Markey Revnik of No. 96 Julian street, Providence, R. I., has been killed in action.

Moving Pictures for Brookline Are Indorsed

Moving pictures for Brookline were unanimously indorsed by the executive committee of the Brookline Board of Trade at a meeting today in the office of Secretary Walter D. Allen. The "movies" are indorsed on the ground that, if located in town, the townspeople will not be forced to go out of their community to attend them and also because they will be a commercial asset.

The Selectmen have already been petitioned by Snyder & Druker, real estate dealers, for a license to operate a high class theatre at Coolidge Corner, and the town officials have decided to give an informal hearing in their rooms at the Town Hall next Monday afternoon.

DON'T BE STINGY WITH CARS FOR SOLDIERS

Committee on Entertainment Eager to Show the Boys Around

The telephone embargo affected the operations of the entertainment committee of the City of Boston Committee for the Reception of Returning Soldiers, Sailors and Marines, as it did all other lines of activity today. Y. D. men, as well as other overseas veterans, swarmed into headquarters at No. 209 Tremont street to secure tickets for the performances at the Wilbur and Shubert Theatres this afternoon and to apply for hotel and sleeping accommodations tonight. Many who have taken advantage of the privileges of using the telephones were visibly disappointed.

The automobile problem continues to perplex the entertainment committee, the few automobiles that were donated yesterday being altogether inadequate to accommodate the number that would have ridden. Because of the disappointment of yesterday, the committee decided to abandon the trips scheduled for this afternoon, especially in view of the two theatrical performances this afternoon, but tomorrow afternoon the trips will be resumed, and the committee urgently requests that owners respond to the appeal for the use of automobiles.

It has been decided that all applicants for automobile rides must apply at headquarters, No. 209 Tremont street, for tickets, which will be good for rides in the machines that will be parked in Charles street, near Boylston street.

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

by HARRY A. BENWELL

EDWARDS EXPLAINS HOW BIG BATTLES WERE WON

This is the seventeenth instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30. Major-General Edwards paid a tribute to the division in the first instalment. The story of the remarkably quick organization and debarkation of the division followed. It was the first complete unit to land in France from the United States.

The story of the sufferings during the Winter months in the training areas and General Edwards taking his entire division into the front line trenches followed. How the Yankees defeated the Germans in their first skirmishes in "No Man's Land" is a thrilling tale.

The 26th fought and won their first big fight at Apremont and followed this by defeating some of the crack German shock troops at Seicheprey. Then came the orders to rush to the aid of the Marines at Chateau Thierry. The official story of this great battle and how the Yankees helped to halt the Germans in their drive on Paris is a magnificent page in New England history.

General Edwards is now telling his own story of the great troop movements in the biggest battles of the war in which the heroic Yankees fought.

JULY 25.

24—The night of 24-25 July was spent in carrying out the relief of elements of this division and of the 56th Brigade, the infantry of this division being concentrated in the vicinity of Boie de Trugny and Chante Merle. The 51st F. A. Brigade and the 101st Engineers were attached to the 42d Division, and continued in the operations.

The command of the zone of action passed to the commanding general, 42d Division, at 19 o'clock, July 25. The reports of the commanding general, 51st F. A. Brigade, and the commanding officer, 101st Engineers, will, therefore, cover a longer period than that contemplated by this report.

CAPTURES.

25. During the period July 18-25, 1918, the following captures were reported:

248 prisoners,
1 210 mm howitzer,
2 177 mm minenwerfer,
4 77 mm minenwerfer,
1 small minenwerfer,
1 88 mm field gun,
2 77 mm field guns,
9 machine guns (complete),
14 machine guns (incomplete),
1 pontoon wagon train (for infantry foot bridge),
A large quantity of ammunition, consisting of shells of all calibres and small arms ammunition.

CASUALTIES.

27. It will be noted that this division not only gained its objectives as ordered, but on occasions went beyond and had to be restrained. Our losses were increased due to the fact that this division, being on the pivot and so early gaining its first objectives, was exposed to disastrous artillery and machine gun fire while awaiting the general movement. After capturing Torcy, Belleau and Givry, the left wing was obliged to wait thirty-six hours before starting out for their new objectives. The division fought continuously, day and night, for eight days. It made a total advance from its first line of 7½ kilometres, and on the second double change of direction on both flanks advanced 17 kilometers in four days.

CHAPTER 16.
Artillery Facts.

28. The cold facts of the work of the 51st Field Artillery are set forth in Brigadier-Gen'l. Aultman's report. The work of the artillery was magnificent. Every battery was ready and willing to answer any call at any hour of the day or night. Liaison with the infantry was the best liaison that was exhibited during the attack. There were times when the difficulty of accurately locating the most advanced infantry units made it impossible to employ the artillery with fullest effect, but in general the infantry was able to tell the artillery where to put its fire and the artillery always promptly responded.

The infantry of this division was relieved on July 24th. The artillery was continued in the advance and paved the way for the elements of the 42d Division and later for elements of the 4th Division, being finally relieved on August 4, after seventeen days continuous participation in the attack. That the officers and men of this brigade have returned to this division in a cheerful, enthusiastic frame of mind speaks volumes for their discipline, training and physical condition, and the fact that comparatively few animals were lost illustrates the thoroughness with which this brigade has been trained.

ENGINEERS.

29—The particular part the engineers played in offensive action has been embodied in my report. In addition to this, the officers and men of the 101st Engineers were indefatigable in the work assigned to them. They worked in removing road obstructions and repairing roads and bridges and made possible an uninterrupted flow of communication between the advanced troops and the ammunition and supply echelons. They were relieved August 2.

SUPPLIES.

30—The supply system functioned perfectly. At no time was there lack of supplies nor any great difficulty in getting the supplies to the troops. The distributing points were advanced as the troops advanced, and supply trucks delivered their rations to advanced positions, often under shell fire. The railhead remained at Nanteuil-sur-Marne. The initial distributing points were Montreuil aux-Lions and Villiers-sur-Marne, and later Vaux and Bourcsches, although it was frequently necessary to distribute supplies at more advanced positions, particularly as elements of the 56th Brigade, which had been obliged to cut loose from their trains in order to enter the zone of action on the prescribed day. The division continued to supply its artillery and engineers until they were relieved—some of them were fifty kilometers away.

31—The assistant chief of staff, G-1, suggests that during an advance it would be preferable to issue canned meats, canned vegetables, canned beans, canned potatoes, hard bread, pulverized coffee, milk, sugar, salt, pepper, canned fruits, preserved and jam, in lieu of the regulation daily issue of fresh and frozen beef, fresh vegetables, potatoes and such articles as were received during the advance. I indorse this suggestion.

EVACUATION OF WOUNDED.

32—The officers and enlisted personnel of the sanitary units exhibited tireless energy in evacuating and caring for the wounded. The commanding officer of the 101st Sanitary Trains reports the evacuation of 4,065 cases, the largest number in any one day being 1,227 on July 23. These figures include some cases of other divisions evacuated over our line, especially during the latter portion of the period. The 102nd Field Hospital established a sifting station at Beauclo-Quary, receiving wounded from the ambulance companies, and, after giving such surgical treatment as was immediately necessary, evacuating them as follows:

(a) Seriously wounded to 103rd F. H. at La Ferte-sous-Jouarre;
(b) Wounded to Evac. Hosp. No. 7 at Montarlaut;
(c) All others to 101-104 F. H. at Luzancy, where patients expected to return to duty within five days were retained and others evacuated to Hospital No. 7.

At times the stream of wounded was so heavy that the regular facilities for transportation were reinforced by 16 trucks from the 101st Supply Train, 11 trucks and 12 ambulances from the 116th Sanitary Train, as well as the trucks of the 101st Sanitary Train, making a total number of vehicles about 140.

LIAISON.

33—Telephone and radio connection was maintained by Division Headquarters with 1st A. C. and with subordinate commanders. The personnel of the Signal Battalion in the advanced areas was continually working under severe fire and exhibited exceptional bravery, at times being compelled to leave their work to run the infantry in the actual defence of positions.

Aeroplane liaison did not work out as satisfactorily as might be desired. Infantry units were reluctant to show their panels because of the frequent presence of enemy planes, but the aviation service gave us as far as their material permitted valuable information of the movements of bodies of troops.

Combat liaison with adjacent divisions was maintained with practically no interruption. Forward communication was continually maintained by telephone, scouts and runners, and supplies and ammunition were delivered every day to battalions.

COMMENTS.

34. Machine Gun Nests. The greatest difficulty the division encountered in meeting the demands and purposes of the higher command in rush forward to pursue, irrespective of flanks or any other elements, was the cleverly and ingeniously placed machine gun nests. Torcy-Belleau-Givry were the main German line of defence. Again, Bourcsches Woods, Borne Layon and Roches line were cleverly arranged machine gun and artillery positions. But the toughest nut to crack was the concentrated defense on the crest of hills the far side of Epieds and Trugny, and finally the use of machine guns in the Foret de Fere and vicinity.

35. These machine guns were located generally in the edge of woods, in fox holes, the depth of a man's shoulder, and occasionally double gun holes. Out in front, distributed in the wheat fields and excellently camouflaged, were any number of other of these holes, mutually supporting, giving a field of fire from 3,000 yards up to the gun. These guns not only commanded the terrain of the reverse slope but also the direct slope to the gun.

DEFEND 'DUMMY DIRECTORS' AT FISH TRIAL

Bay State Company Legal, Declares Hurlburt in Closing Argument

Defending the organization of the Bay State Fish Company as legal, Attorney Henry S. Hurlburt, counsel for several of the thirty defendants constituting the so-called "Fish Trust," replied in his closing arguments before Judge Sanderson today to charges that "dummy directors" were used, and to the indictment charging the defendants with having "defrauded the public" in issuing stock.

"The people who received the common stock of this company received it as a bonus for buying preferred stock," Hurlburt declared. "Nobody paid a dollar for common stock.

"You have seen no person in this court room, man or woman, who has ever been brought into this case who has paid a dollar for common stock, or said that they were defrauded of one dollar."

Hurlburt is to be followed by Attorney-General Attwill in behalf of the State, and the case will be in the hands of the jury late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Answering the charge that "dummy directors" were used, Hurlburt declared it was common practice when a company was organized in another States and when it was impossible for the subsequent directors to go, to have qualifying directors or "dummy directors" elected.

These "dummy directors" resign at a regular meeting and others are elected in their place, he declared.

Mr. Hurlburt went into the organization of the Bay State Fish Company, organized in Maine, and declared it was entirely legal.

Bert Ford's Tales of the Y D

In Chapter VII. of his Tales of the Yankee Division, Mr. Ford tells how at the height of the battle of the Argonne Forest, when the Germans had massed 10 to one, the 101st Infantry, through a gap in the enemy lines, was cut off from the rest of the division and for three days fought on with only a handful of men, the remnant of the regiment, against the entire strength of the German army.

Mr. Ford also tells of the magnificent way given to the Boston infantry regiment by James J. Phelan, the well-known Boston banker and his colleagues in the Red Cross Association, formerly the Ninth Regiment Associates, and the Women's Auxiliary.

The installment tomorrow, Chapter VIII., will include chats interviews with Chaplain M. J. O'Connor and his sister-in-law, Joe Corbett of Manchester, Mass.

By BERT FORD

CHAPTER VII

"Oh, the doughboys, the doughboys, with mud behind their ears!"

This line from a song popular in American army camps overseas, hints at the gruelling grind of the infantry.

In every war the foot troops have had to bear the lion's share, but never in history had the infantry faced greater peril and hardships than in the late world conflict, because of the development and destructiveness of modern war machinery.

Men were termed "gun fodder" and the term was no exaggeration. At the outset of the war, the French were compelled to check the ascending sweep of enemy blue-gray hordes with men, just as the Belgians and the slaughter was terrible then; they had an opportunity to overcome the handicap severely later on the Germans and had produced French guns which equalled and often surpassed those of the enemy. For instance was the 75 a light field piece invented by a French officer which strength of 3,600. There are now in the regiment men from Montana, California, North Carolina and Georgia and every one is a Yankee Division veteran and 100 percenter.

The 101st Infantry was organized August 21, 1917, the nucleus from the old Massachusetts 8th Regiment, with a filling to war strength from the old 1st Massachusetts and a crack National Guard organization which Colonel Willis W. Stover commanded in the Mexican border service. He was creditable to himself and his men. The 5th Regiment U.S. Infantry, the splitting up of their command, but long before they entered the fighting line they had one purpose—to keep the colors of the 101st Infantry among the highest on the western front and they did it.

AID CHEERED BOYS.

The patriotic members of the 8th Regiment Association, who contributed such a generous fund for the welfare of the newly constructed regiment overseas, were more than repaid for the valor and the sacrifices of the men in Colonel Logan's command. If they could have seen the benefits of their funds their hearts would have swelled with satisfaction. There was not an American regiment in France so well cared for in the line of extras. The men looked it and acted it. It made them better fighters.

President James J. Phelan, the well-known Boston banker, and his colleagues, helped in a larger and more vital manner than they may have realized, to win battles, because they were instrumental in preserving the morale of the men of the regiment.

I hope former Congressman Joseph O'Neil, Mr. Ratchesky, Mr. Endicott, "Dan" Coakley, "Jack" Heyer, Congressmen Gallivan and Fitzgerald and all the good women of the Auxiliary will not blush too violently at this praise, because it is gospel truth.

The women were just as loyal supporters as the men at home; in fact, the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts will probably never know what a power for good they were. I cabled a story from the Western front one day to the effect that the Marne with the Marines when they and the Ninth and Twenty-Third Infantry regiments, all forming the Second Division, leap-frogged the tired French and checked the Germans' second march? drive on Paris.

REPORTED LATER BATTLES.

After that I reported every American battle and had the good fortune to be with the 27th and 30th American Divisions when they helped the British smash the Hindenburg line in the north. After the armistice we supplied correspondents advanced with the American Army of Occupation, and I remained in Germany three months.

Before I leave these fields and inject the personal element reluctantly at this stage of my series, for a purpose, I want to suggest deeds, among them magazine stories and especially books that the writers, showed a tendency to devote more space to what they had done than to the troop achievements. I always felt that the reading public was more interested in their soldiers and what they did, and soon dered that the mere telling of a development of battle, the fact that I saw and wrote about it, was proof sufficient that you had been there.

However, my purpose in briefly outlining the fighting which I reported as an eye-witness, is to show that I was in a position to judge when I say that there was no better fighting material; no more gallant or aggressive shock troops on the Western front than those contributed by New England and Boston.

I saw them all in action and I talked with experts from various countries. With our own commissions along, we were not compelled to wait until fighting came to any single division, but on the contrary were obliged, as accredited men, to follow the fighting wherever any or ahery who were confined to certain zones or divisional areas and who had to wait until the storm broke in their territory.

BLAME BRITISH FOR MUTINY OF U. S. MEN

New York, April 15.—Hardships endured upon American soldiers by alleged callous British officers, who protected the "Tommies" at the expense of the doughboys in Russia, and not Bolshevist propaganda, caused the mutiny among members of company I, of the 339th Regiment, according to wounded veterans of the Archangel campaign who returned today from Russia on the transport Plattsburg. One of the wounded soldiers said:

"As one stretch Company I fought six weeks without relief. Four men were killed, many wounded and one was captured. Thirty-five were sick, owing to the terrible hardships they had to endure.

"We were not cowards," said Private Curt A. Neilson of Sandusky, "but were kept in the line until we were about to perish. We had no reserves and the British officers under whom all American troops in Russia are operating, did not seem to care about us.

"They gave us no support, leaving the Yankees to do the fighting while they kept the 'Tommies' back of the line."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, treating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition as this when ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids, instead get from any druggist a few ounces of pure Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—not liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who relish their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

TEA STORE THIEF GETS CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

Charles P. McDonald, who broke and entered a store of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company and stole $100, was today placed on probation by Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Criminal Court, before whom McDonald appeared for sentence. The action was taken in the belief that if McDonald secured work and with his earnings paid back the money he had unlawfully taken it would have a better effect upon him than if he were imprisoned.

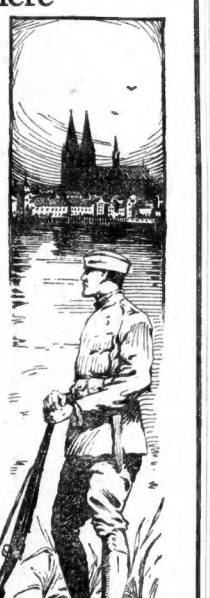
The Yank in Germany Will Stay There until our sacrifices in life, blood and treasure are justified by a safe and durable peace,—a peace satisfactory to us.

We went into war for ideal purposes, we fought the war in a clean way and we won a noble victory.



What we gained should be an impulse to something even nobler!

We can continue to influence world affairs only as we deserve the world's confidence.

We should school ourselves to use our unparalleled wealth constructively and productively.

Thrift does not mean hoarding

Our wealth loaned to our Government and used to repair the waste of war is true thrift.

Professor Says: 'Internal Baths Give Best Results'

Horace T. Dodge, M. D., Professor of Materia Medica, 25 Jacobson Bldg., Denver, writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows:

"I can truthfully say that I have had the best results in my experience with the 'J. B. L. Cascade.' You certainly have struck the keynote of many diseases.

By means of the "J. B. L. Cascade" simple warm water cleanses the lower intestine, the entire length, removes all the poisonous waste therein and keeps it clean and pure, as Nature demands it shall be for perfect health.

You will be astonished at your feelings the morning after taking an internal bath with the "J. B. L. Cascade." You will feel bright, brisk, confident and as though everything was working right—and it is.

It absolutely removes constipation and prevents Auto-Intoxication.

Lightner-Jarvis stores in New England will show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you and will also give you free on request a most interesting booklet, "Why Only 30% Efficient," by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, for 25 years a specialist on Internal Bathing. Ask for it today.—Advertisement.

ALCOHOL ON KIDNEYS

The constant, regular or irregular use of beverages containing alcohol, will sooner or later make trouble for the kidneys. Sometimes an excess acid secretion is formed, but usually the beginning of urinary trouble is denoted by an excess alkaline secretion giving rise to frequent desire of urination, followed by pain, burning, scalding, with irritation manifest in the passage. The urine highly colored and strong of odor should be corrected with as they stimulate normal secretion, allay inflammation, purify and restore natural action promptly.

Quick, Harmless Way to Remove Wrinkles

Nadinola Cream brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are quick exposed to winds and changing temperatures. To make an effective wrinkle remover, mix an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution—immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully on sagging facial muscles, also, the lotion possesses remarkable astringent and tonic properties. Use it once a day for a while and see how it will improve your facial contour.

MELODRAMA AT MAJESTIC A THRILLER

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Seven Days Leave," a military melodrama of today by Walter Howard, was presented at the Majestic Theatre last night before a large and thrilled audience.

The history of this piece is peculiar. It ran for two years in London at the Lyceum, and was brought to America by Daniel Frohman. Mr. Frohman presented it exactly as it was done in the British capital. It happened that what the Londoners thought were tremendous spectacular effects had been borrowed from our summer parks, and when brought to America didn't thrill us in the least. The big climax of the piece in London fell as flat as a pancake in Boston where it was given for the first time, originally enough in the Majestic Theatre less than two season ago.

The piece was cut from under and the supposed failure was taken off the boards, cut to pieces, rebuilt, with some real American kick in the plot, allotted for the dull British stuff, and then produced in Cleveland with a big hit. New York kept it for six solid months.

Those who saw it here two seasons ago found it interesting to watch the work of the play surgeons while persons who had not seen it the first time, originally enough in the Majestic Theatre less than two season"

WOMEN READY TO PUT OVER FIFTH LOAN

New England Thoroughly Organized, Says Mrs. Higginson, Chairman

Women of New England are thoroughly organized for the purpose of "putting across" the fifth, or Victory Loan, according to the statement of Mrs. Frances L. Higginson, chairman of the New England Women's Liberty Loan Committee. These women have worked with enthusiasm during the four previous loans, and today are filled with determination to make the fifth loan a Victory Loan in fact as well as name.

Town publicity chairmen are doing their share in the work of advertising the loan, though many of them are handicapped for time to give to the work. One chairman, according to the story told by Mrs. Higginson, is the head of a large baking establishment, the name of which she has changed to the Victory Bakeshop.

For the period of the loan she is making her bread V-shaped, her doughnuts are brown and crusty and delicious Vs, and even her sugar and molasses cookies are made in the symbol of the fifth loan. Buns, breakfast cakes and muffins are all made in the same shapes.

"TO PAY THE BILLS."

The Victory Loan Committee has announced the four loans, with the amounts taken and the amounts by which the allotments were exceeded in New England alone, for the benefit of comparison:

	Taken	Exceeded
First Loan	$352,447,000	$360,000,000
Second Loan	476,000,050	*500,000,000
Third Loan	534,587,250	104,587,250
Fourth Loan	632,221,850	132,221,850

*Maximum quota.

The Victory Loan is the loan planned to "pay the bills." It is the loan planned to bring home the soldiers, to pay for demobilization and reconstruction.

In some of the Southern camps and hospitals this reconstruction work is doing wonderful things for the men who have returned, shattered, broken, mere wrecks of their former selves. In one of the hospitals there is a boy who has already had fourteen operations on the stump that he once called a leg.

AIDING WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

Yet he is learning mechanical drawing, and during the long hours he makes crocheted caps—good ones, too—and he makes beaded bags, fob chains and purses. He is trying to make something of the life that he has left.

The Victory Loan is to pay for all of this. It is the loan that will "finish the job." According to the government, the end of the tremendous expenditure is already in sight. The increase of expenditure was enormous. The decrease is almost as marked.

The Victory Loan promises to be the best, and according to the loan committee, all New England is ready to put it across in a manner that will do credit to her, and make the last loan in reality, the "Victorious Fifth."

In other words, those of you who prefer double breasted suits should bear in mind that two rows of buttons won't make a double breasted suit. Some designers, however, have been fairly clever in camouflaging some of their war-made clothes. Morse double breasteds are full fashioned, real double breasteds.

As usual the Morse store, having the largest turn over in Boston were able to clean out all "war cut" clothing in the January Clearance Sale. Today the Morse stocks contain all new goods turned out since Jan. first. They represent the top notch of fashion.

Again the great Morse Store shows its heels to competition that isn't competition.

PROFITEERS JOIN TO KILL COST PRICE STORES

Agents of the [illegible] the Boston American Fish Stores and the express business of Alden A Mills at No. 101 Tremont street this morning declared [illegible] season of [illegible] of the largest fish retailers in New England were [illegible]

"To put out of business the Boston American Fish Stores and Alden A Mills.

"To attempt a boycott on any wholesale fish dealers whom they believe have supplied fish to Mr. Mills and the Boston American stores.

"To [illegible] the part of the profiteering retailers are.

That Mr. Mills and the Boston American fish stores have proved that many retailers have been profiteering.

That these two agencies, by distributing thousands of tons of fish at cost during Lent, have prevented the profiteers from robbing the public of the customary thousands of dollars during this season.

That the Boston American, through its stores and Mr. Mills, has for the first time in many years kept the retail price of fish at its lowest known level during Holy Week, when the profiteers, knowing that the majority of the public must eat fish, have been accustomed to raise prices and make a big haul.

That the profiteers are impatient to raise prices [illegible]

To try by every measure to close the Boston American Fish Stores.

To refuse to buy fish of the wholesale firms which have sold fish to Mr. Mills and the Boston American Fish Stores.

"I helped design this Bond Bread"

"AND, Joe, it's every bit as wholesome and delicious as the home-made loaf I baked for the Contest.

"They have really done what they said they would do—they have really patterned Bond Bread after the loaves we submitted. And every time I eat it, I feel as if I were eating bread I baked myself.

"So now, Joe, I'll never have to bake bread again, and I've written a letter to the makers of Bond Bread to tell them how I feel."

Almost every one of the 6405 New England women, who submitted a loaf of bread in the Baking Contest on January 16th, feels the same way as Joe's mother. They all seem to agree that Bond Bread does combine the best home-made qualities of the 121 prize loaves selected by the women judges.

What One Woman Says

"It gives me great pleasure to inform you that in my estimation as regards both quality and thorough baking, Bond Bread is A-1, and could not be improved upon—not even by home-made."

JULY 4 BATTLE IS WANTED BY MARYLAND

New York, April 15.—The Willard-Dempsey fight is wanted by Cumberland, Md., and Tex Rickard, who is here today, says he is considering an offer made to him by a promoter from that city.

Rickard was approached in the Hotel Biltmore by John W. Snyder of Cumberland. Describing features of the conference later, Rickard said Snyder made him an offer, but not a cash offer—for holding the contest near Cumberland.

Snyder said he had 350 acres of ground, suitable for the huge stadium Rickard intends to build for staging the fight, and with a considerable water frontage. The whole affair can be reached readily from more than half of the twelve populated centers of the United States.

Not the least of Snyder's arguments in favor of the site he offered was the assurance that the fight could go to any desired number of rounds, with a decision, and with no interference from the authorities.

"I am considering Mr. Snyder's offer," said Rickard, "and have promised to give him an answer by next Monday. I have another place under consideration also."

Rickard declined to name the other place he is considering.

It is known that Rickard favors staging the mill in New York city, provided the State Legislature passes a law prior to June 1 permitting a decision fight. That would allow him little time enough in which to construct the big stadium.

BURKE AND DRISCOLL SHINE IN B. A. A. RELAYS

Tom (Sailor) Burke, ex-Holy Cross flier, turned in a victory for the seniors of Boston College in the interclass race by gamely overcoming the lead held by Meredith of the freshmen. The big feature was the running of Jake Driscoll, operating third for the freshmen, he overcame a lead of thirty yards and had it over one of ten yards.

Driscoll is due to journey to Paris next Summer with the pass quartet with which he has done speedy work on the boards all Winter.

LYNCH PACKS UP AND LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

London, April 15.—Joe Lynch, American bantamweight boxer, has left for New York. He has evidently made up his mind he was "robbed" of the decision in his recent fight with Jimmy Wilde, as he was so keen to hooked for several other battles and his departure was totally unexpected.

SHEVLIN WINS SO EASY HE IS GIVEN DECISION

London, April 15.—Eddie Shevlin of Boston, Mass., champion welterweight boxer of the United States Navy, outpointed Fred Newberry in a twenty-round fight at the National Sporting Club. It was Shevlin a battle all the way.

Murchison Likes New York

New York, April 15.—Loren Murchison, St. Louis speed marvel plans locating in New York. It is likely he will enroll with the New York A. C.

Last Night in the Ring

Philadelphia, Frank A. (Young) Britt of New Bedford, Mass., got popular decision over Willie Jackson of New York, six rounds.

Milwaukee, Ia.—K. O. Laughlin of Green Bay knocked out Tom Leonard of Wilkesbarre, fourth round.

Wakefield—Young Jim Critler of Lawrence defeated Henry Loring of Charlestown, six rounds. Joe Belmont of Lawrence stopped Frank Dubois of Wakefield, fifth round. Leslie Letson of Wakefield stopped Tony Trusco of Boston, third round; Young Duffy of Wakefield stopped Young Conlon of Reading, first round; Kid Wilson of Pittsfield stopped Young Duffy of Haverhill, fourth round.

Westfield—Phil Logan of Jamestown, N. Y., defeated Charley Hayes of New York, twelve rounds. Hayes substituted for George Brown.

TAD'S TIDBITS

QUEER FREAKS IN FIGHTERS' MAKEUP.

The gamest fighters that were ever seen in the ring are often the biggest cowards outside of it. Then again it often happens that a fighter will appear to be afraid in one fight and in another he could give a tiger two bites the best of it and then lick him.

Stanley Ketchel was about as fearless a fighter as you ever saw. There was no fear in that guy while in a fight, yet at Van Cortlandt Park one morning a little pup took a fit, and the first guy to climb a tree was our brave Ketchel.

Jim Jeffries, who fought with his face slashed and his nose broken and then came out a winner, was the biggest coward in the world when he'd hear of a dentist.

Frank Moran, with the heart of a lion, would fight a wagon load of wildcats, yet on a fast train he'd shake like a rat.

Meehan Makes Awful Squawk.

Willie Meehan, while boxing with Benny Leonard one afternoon, sprained his wrist and let out a howl like a wounded elephant. He sailed around on the floor, moaning and squealing to beat the band. A few months before that he met and defeated Jack Dempsey. In that fight Dempsey knocked Meehan down. The latter hit the floor so hard that his belt broke. He didn't utter a squeak. He got up at the count of nine and took a pasting that few fighters would stand for. He won out after that.

Jim Corbett never showed a trace of fear in the ring. He fought Peter Jackson when no other white man was willing to be in the same town with the stalwart black.

Up at Reno, while helping Jeff train, Corbett lived in Walter Kelly's bungalow. Kelly caught a cricket one evening and held it in his hand. Corbett pleaded with Kelly for the cricket's life. "Hold on, I never saw one, Walter," piped Jim. "Let's get a peek at it." Kelly let Corbett get his nose close to the fist holding the cricket, then, suddenly opened it and let the bug hop. Corbett fell over backward and let out a howl. He was frightened stiff.

41 ENTRIES IN TO DATE FOR MARATHON

Entries for the B. A. A. annual Marathon, Patriots' Day, will close tomorrow.

To date there are but forty-one starters and surely A. Prout expects fifty starters to the big race. This falls far short of the record of 67 or seven, but is explained by the absence of many fast Marathoners now in France.

The Dot is expected to put in appearance, however, as he is showing fine form in practice and has been clocked at 2:30 for the distance. Among the many fine performers entered though are several who will be making their first appearance in the race. An outstanding feature of the list is the name of Walter W. A. Hulbert of the Harvard A. A. Quarter and Jimmy Henigan.

Glancing over the entries we note that Reardon of Boston College, who is considered a fine prospect, is entered to be Hulbert's opponent. Reardon won the [illegible] championship of Sweden three [illegible].

SHIPPING ISSUES AND OILS AT THE HIGHEST

Market Very Active All the Morning and Over Midday

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Prices were at about the highest level for the day in New York in the afternoon, or at least this was true of the most active issues. Another upward movement developed during the noon hour. The market was very active, the sales until the noon hour. It was the seventh million share day so far this month. In the afternoon oils and shipping issues were conspicuous for strength, stocks showing the largest gains being Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co., Atlantic Gulf, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co. and Pan-American. Sumatra Tobacco made a substantial advance after a report s to its 1918 ernings. American Woolen common gained more than a point.

A New York dispatch described the market at its beginning as follows:

"The assurance that the Victory Loan will be many times oversubscribed and developments at the peace conference at Paris exerted a combined influence in causing strength in the trading and during the first fifteen minutes there were general gains ranging from a fraction to over four points. Stocks which sold on dividend made good progress to the recovery of those dividends, which is always regarded as incidental to a bull campaign."

COTTON MARKET STEADY AND HIGHER AT OPENING

New York, April 15.—The consumption figures were considered quite bearish, being about 140,000 bales behind the same month last year, they were offset by strong cables and good Liverpool and other foreign buying, so that the cotton market opened steady today and six to twenty points higher op old and ten to twenty-four points up on new style contracts. There also was good buying of July and May spot houses.

Most of the selling was by the South and by commission houses, the latter taking profits. Offerings were restricted strong, advancing twenty-five to thirty-five points over last night's close on an active demand from bull shorts and increased buying for outside speculative accounts.

Opening prices were: May, old 25.50, new 28.90; July, old 24.50, new 28.25; August, old 23.60, new 24.70; October, old 23.60, new 23.50; December, new 23.00; January, new 22.84; March, new 22.70.

"STOCKING UP" ON RUM MAY BE MADE UNLAWFUL

Washington, April 15. — Persons who have been arranging to "stock up" before prohibition goes into effect may be brought to grief by a decision handed down by the supreme Court. The court held that "stocking up" will be unlawful if a law should be passed limiting the amount a man may have in his possession. It is believed that the decision will affect the decision Anti-Saloon League leaders will attempt to have Congress pass a law fixing the limit which may be kept on hand.

North Adams, April 15.—With over 500 names already listed the first step toward procuring a suitable memorial for graduates and ex-students at every high school who served in the army, navy or marine corps during the world war, has been taken. HEAVY DEMAND FOR SEATS TO SEE AL JOLSON

After a preliminary campaign of two weeks devoted to a mail order sale which already had reached enormous proportions, the regular advance sale of seats for the engagement of Al Jolson in "Sinbad" at the Boston Opera House, beginning next Monday night, opened yesterday morning at two different box offices—the Boston Opera House and the Little building.

The lines began forming with the rising of the sun and by 9 o'clock the one at the Little building reached, in treble formation, clear around the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, while the one at the Boston Opera House reached half a block down Huntington avenue.

At Jolson, the star of "Sinbad," purchased two tickets himself by wire to give to an old couple who had known him since he was a little boy. J. J. Shubert, the managing director of the Shubert theatres, who is in Boston now, bought two seats for the use of his little boy. J. J. Shubert, Jr., who is coming on to Boston to represent his father at the opening performance.

Government Must Be Made an Instrument to Promote Welfare of All Our People

An ex-Governor of New York is to be investigated in a bribery case. This shocking scandal has sent its tremors into every State in the Union. A State senator of New York was solicited for his favorable vote on a bill to raise traction fares. The senator testifies that the ex-Governor, presumably speaking for the traction interests, dangled before him the nomination for Governor in return for his vote, and another emissary of the privileged interests offered to finance his campaign to the extent of $500,000. The talk about the campaign for the governorship was polite camouflage. The senator when the time came would take his half million dollars and slip it into his pocket. That was to be a generous return for his vote and influence in behalf of the increased trolley fare bill. The governorship talk was a joke. These candidates are not new. They are almost monotonous.

The last mayoralty election in New York was made infamous by the expenditure of a two-million dollars corruption fund. Twenty or more bribed election officials were sent to jail. One rich briber was indicted, but never convicted. Occasionally a millionaire does get indicted. But he is seldom sent to jail. If the criminal is sent to jail, it is because he is no longer a millionaire. He has suffered reverses, bankruptcy. But let his fortunes recover while he is in prison and soon powerful influences get to work and gold bridges his path to freedom.

Not long ago the nation was shaken for a few days by the revelation of the gigantic stealing of the Sugar Trust on the Brooklyn docks. Government scales were fixed and hundreds of thousands of dollars in customs duties were stolen from the government. A few clerks and weighers went to jail. Their lives were ruined, their families disgraced. They were made outcasts. But the Sugar Trust officials are still enjoying freedom and respectability.

The history of America is full of such instances. It is our national vice. The present scandal in New York is like hundreds of similar infamies. But unlike these other infamies it comes at a time when Europe is trembling on the brink of revolution. Cool-headed statesmen are trying to avoid chaos. The best brains of the world are seeking remedies for this menacing condition of dissatisfaction, based on inequality and injustice, which is called Bolshevism.

America is mercifully free from this plague now, but it is idle to deny that the fear of it is everywhere and that the great mass of the people are testing our institutions as never before. That is why the cleverest understanding of the exact significance of these bribery cases is of more tremendous importance than any other question in America today. It is important at this moment to point out to honest men of property the issue at stake, which is nothing less than whether the institutions and ideals of this nation shall survive the shock of world revolution.

These bribery cases, this debauchery of public service, this undermining of democracy, has a vaster meaning than the corruption of individuals. The malefactors of great wealth, as Roosevelt called them, buy with their bribes not merely a weak public official. They buy the privilege to exploit labor, to steal from the man who rides on street cars, to increase the cost of living in a thousand direct and indirect ways. They destroy the integrity of the courts, make a cynical joke of our cherished ideal of equal justice for rich and poor. Their poisonous crimes reach down to the economic and social foundations of life and rot the very fabric of our democracy.

It is more than bribery. It is treason against every ideal and principle of our government and a crime against every citizen in it.

The extermination of this treason then is plainly as important as a war to save the republic. Nothing less. And if the treason is to be stamped out, we must know who is the real criminal. Is the greater scoundrel the weak official who yields to the temptation that the men of great power and prestige know so well how to present, or is the greater scoundrel the rich corruptionist who contaminates the community with criminal misuse of the wealth which the beneficent laws of this nation permit him to accumulate?

Obviously the rich corruptionist is the greater scoundrel and the greater danger.

It is he who initiates the debauchery. It is he who creates the corruption of the public service. It is he who causes the downfall of public officials, and it is he who brings about in the breasts of the millions of toilers the burning sense of indignation and dissatisfaction that makes them willing at last to listen to the inflamed preachers of discontent and revolt.

These silk-hatted apostles of Bolshevism, these new Benedict Arnolds may not suffer for their crimes today, but you honest men of property who are not corruptionists will suffer some day.

You honest, law-abiding citizens who make your wealth through conscientious effort and through service rendered the community will finally fall almost equally under violent resentment of outraged people if the day of reckoning for financial freebooters under orderly process of law is too long delayed.

It is your business, therefore, honest men of wealth, to prevent those rich corruptionists from destroying you and this government with you.

You are not guilty of the criminal acts, but you are tolerant of the men who commit the criminal acts. You are too [illegible] in San Francisco did to arrange complimentary banquets to rich and powerful offenders in their hour of trial in order to maintain their social prestige and to impress upon the common crowd the idea that criminals, no matter how base, are beyond the reach of punishment or disgrace so long as they have the absolution of monumental wealth. Their millions are a sanctuary more safe than a cathedral altar in the Middle Ages. And you honest men of property have made it so.

You have fixed your eyes too long upon the petty criminal. You have filled the jails with his kind. The law does not break down, justice does not faint or falter, when he is before the bar. But this crime that the attempted bribery of the New York senator hoped to accomplish involves millions of petty larcenies. By the operation of the law these malefactors expected to bribe onto the statute books at least fifteen dollars a year would have been filched from the pockets of every New York straphanger. The average punishment for the petty larcenist who steals an overcoat or a laprobe from a limousine of one of these traction magnates is certainly six months. If we punished the traction magnates as certainly and as surely and as swiftly as we punish the ordinary sneak thief and in the same proportion, though they lived to be as old as Methuselah, those millionaires would not have enough years among them to make even a small beginning on their sentences.

But the crime of the bribing millionaires, of course, is not to be put in the same category with the ordinary larceny or robbery. The ordinary larcenist steals merely what he steals. He does not steal the goverment along with his other loot, nor the happiness and hopes of millions and millions of toiling men and women. If the safety of society demands the punishment of the ordinary larcenist, can you, honest men of property who are so careful to see that the ordinary criminal gets justice, longer be unmoved by the terrifying crimes of these greatest criminals of all, the wealthy debauchers of public servants.

It is your business not only to make money but to maintain conditions that will maintain yourselves and your families in comfort. It is your business as citizens to uphold the stability of the State, the honesty of the processes of the government, the impartiality of the courts and the happiness and the property of all our people. If you are good business men, you will attend to your business, and this is the most important of your business.

It is the citizen's right to make money for himself and to care for those who are near and dear to him, keeping in mind the while the welfare and happiness of his neighbor. It is his duty as well as his right, and no citizen can claim exemption from this double duty. But too many of you business men in amassing wealth have failed to resent the criminality of the dishonest men in your own circles. You have minded your own business in a too narrow sense, forgetting that the State's business is the most important part of any business. Men of honest wealth can no longer maintain part of any business. Men of honest wealth can no longer maintain this false position. The founders of this republic gave the remedy—they have it in that principle of equality before the law. We have strayed away from it. We must come back to it. And honest men of wealth must be the first to see that their power and wealth is used not to protect but to punish the criminal bribers who are undermining our security and daily furnishing ammunition for the soap boxers who would tear down every precious institution that has made this free country the hope of humanity.

The warning has long been uttered.

Carlyle many years ago, writing on the certainty of justice, said:

"In this God's world, with its wild whirling eddies and mad foam oceans, where men and nations perish if without law and judgment for an unjust thing is sternly delayed, dost thou think that therefore there is no justice? It is what the fool hath said in his heart."

Yes, the warning has long been uttered and long unheeded. But men's minds today are working with a new fervor. And there is hope that among thoughtful and law-loving business men there is a striving for a new vision and a new service. Your opportunity is here in this New York scandal. You must show these rich rascals that they are worthy of no more consideration than the most wretched criminal. As long as they are free to corrupt without penalty, they will continue to corrupt. They will continue to pile up resentment and retribution under the weight of which you will all fall in time. But a few of them as safely and securely in prison as the thousands of petty offenders they themselves have helped to lock in cells will be evidence that we are determined to correct these nation-wrecking abuses.

In bloodshed and tears, with a grim, flaming patriotism that sent a thrill of joyous wonder across the world, this nation of ours was established. Honest dealing, justice to all men were it's bulwarks. Only the blindest, stupidest treason to its ideals can weaken it in the affection of its citizens.

Today there is another revolution swiftly sweeping towards western Europe. It is the stark, angry uprearing of oppressed millions. In its wake comes murder and crimes and a wild fury of hatred. It is dragging its crimson trail through hitherto peaceful countries, through farms, villages, cities. It must not come to this land.

Business men of America, make business honest. Make government an instrument to promote the welfare and happiness of all our people. Prevent Bolshevism, which we all dread, by depriving it of the greatest and, perhaps, the only incitation to its growth in this country, the social, political and economic crimes of our malefactors of great wealth.

This is the nation's testing hour.

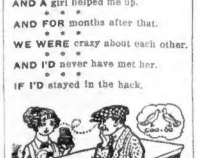
By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—You being a man of long experience, I want to ask you through your column just how to let a girl know you are stuck on her without making a monkey out of yourself.

This girl is wrestling dishes in a cafeteria and seems to be just my style in every way. She smiles at all the old bucks, but not at me. I have just seen her about three times and don't like the idea of starting a conversation like: "Isn't the weather plenitiful this year?" or some other foolishness. So I am asking you for a few pointers, because you know there is no more pitiable sight than a big stiff in love.

More power to you.
San Francisco. L. E.

MY DEAR L. E.
WHEN I was a young man
AND USED to be in love
EVERY LITTLE while
WITH A different girl
I MIGHT have been able
TO ADVISE you correctly.
BUT IT'S such a long time
SINCE I have been free
TO RUN around loose.
THAT I can think of nothing
THAT MIGHT help you
TO COP the dame.
OUT OF the chow chamber
AND BESIDES,
IN THE old days
THERE WAS no such thing
AS A cafeteria.
AND EVEN if it happened
THAT MY memory was good,
MY LACK of experience
WOULD PRECLUDE the possibility
OF MY steering you right,
BUT IF I were you,
I WOULD confine myself
TO EATING my meals
IN THE cafeteria.
WHERE THE girl works
AND I'D just eat the things
THAT ARE at her counter
AND AT every meal
I'D FILL my tray full,
AND KIND of linger around,
SO SHE could look it over,
AND YOU never can tell.
BUT THAT after a while
SHE MIGHT size you up
AND SAY to herself:
SOME SPENDER!
"SEE WHAT he eats."
AND AFTER that,
SHE'D START looking for you
AND THEN you'd have her
BECAUSE JUST the moment
THEY START looking for you
YOU'VE GOT 'em going
AND AFTER that
IF YOU work fast enough,
SHE MIGHT learn to love you
AND, ANYWAY,
THE FIRST thing to do
IS ATTRACT her attention.
I REMEMBER one time
I FELL out of a hack
AND A girl helped me up
AND FOR months after that
WE WERE crazy about each other,
AND I'D never have met her
IF I'D stayed in the hack.



I THANK you.

A Long Word
Cows and Statesmen
$400 Yearly Per Acre
One Exemplary Hanging

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.

Perpetuity is a long word. France, in perpetuity, which is forever, is to have the rich mines of the Saar Valley. Fifty billions is the amount in cash that Germany must pay by way of war damages. France gets five billions within eighteen months, five times the amount that Prussia took from her in 1871.

Fifty billions are to be paid in fifty years.

Even fifty years is a long time. No one can say what will happen, what nations will be fighting each other, what revolutions will have broken out and died out, what "United States of Europe, will have grown up and broken down within fifty years.

As for the word "perpetuity," that means, of course, "until further notice. What France now takes in perpetuity belonged to the Spanish Emperor Charles V. not so long ago, to Charlemagne still earlier, to wandering German tribes, ancestors of the present French, earlier yet. And before that it all belonged to the Aurochs, the wooly haired rhinoceros, the Neanderthal, the Ore-Magnon and other human types of half a million years ago. Each had it, as he thought, "in perpetuity," and planned accordingly.

All we know about perpetuity is that it will see the Saar Valley and rest of Europe once more covered with ice, inferior forms of life fleeing from the cold toward the equator and man gone from the earth, unable in its old age to support a life requiring so much heat.

On the Twentieth Century train last night W. W. Marsh, National Democratic committeeman from Iowa, was talking to Roger Sullivan, who is the Democratic party in Illinois. Roger Sullivan said it was difficult for him to express his admiration for President Wilson, and it did seem difficult.

Mr. Marsh, who is in politics for sport, in the cream separator business for a living and in the raising of Guernsey cows for pleasure, made this statement, which, taken to heart by about five million Americans, would solve food problems:

"This country knows nothing about getting wealth from the soil. The island of Guernsey is about half the size of a township in Illinois. Wisconsin or Iowa. That island of fifteen thousand acres supports forty thousand people well.

"Here a farmer is proud if he takes sixty dollars from an acre in one year. Guernsey exports in agricultural and horticultural products four hundred dollars a year for every acre.

"They have on the island one thousand miles of glass houses, in which they raise four crops a year, without artificial heat. The houses are forty-eight feet wide, fourteen feet high to the ridge of the roof.

"Their first crop is early potatoes. The second string beans. The third tomatoes. The fourth grapes, that sell here and abroad for a dollar a pound and up. In the early season they strip the leaves from the grape vines to let the sun into the other crops. This holds the grapes back to just the time when they want them. That is real intensive farming."

At this point Marsh, with the light of fanaticism in his eye, took from his pocket a picture of a Guernsey cow named "Pigtreet of P," and began: "The Guernsey cow, as you see, has no beef on top, everything below for production. This young cow, three years old, yields almost her own weight in butter fat in a year. The wonderful yellow color of Guernsey milk and butter, even in Winter, is nothing on earth except condensed sunshine. No chemist can explain it. Buy only Guernseys."

Here the Democratic party of Illinois interrupted the committeeman from Iowa, saying, "You promised not to mention Guernseys on this trip."

What Mr. Marsh of Iowa says about the Island of Guernsey might be said about every good acre of land now half cultivated in the United States. If we knew how and had to do it.

Turning from our own fortunate country back to Europe, it is some satisfaction to read that a gentleman called Kemal Bey has been hanged in Turkey for murdering wretched Armenians wholesale.

There is nothing like hanging one wholesale murderer to discourage others.

Capital punishment, brutal and unwise for ordinary murderers, since it makes the State set the example of killing, is necessary in dealings between nations.
